DAY OF ACTION AT GENEVA

FINANCIAL SANCTIONS WATERTIGHT

PRACTICAL APPLICATION BEFORE END OF WEEK

Geneva, To-day.

Yesterday was another day crowded with incident and progress for which most credit must be given to M. Maximos; the Greek president of the financial sub-committee and M. Coulandre, the French technical expert.

M. Maximos steered the financial resolutions through the committee with skill and speed.

The terms of the resolution are as watertight as it is humane, possible to make them, covering every possible form of credit and financial operations, direct or indirect, between the Italian Government, institutes, business firms and all Italian individuals. The resolution will not interfere with private banking or their deposits abroad or payments of instalments on loans already issued but not fully transferred. The resolution will, however, prevent the issue of a second portion of any loan even if the first section has been handed over.

Mr. Ferguson, the Canadian representative, pointed out that Canada, like other signatories of the League, stood to lose heavily and was supported by Mr. Te Water, the South African delegate.

NANKING TO RECOGNISE MANCHUKUO?

Mr. Hsiao Interprets Siamese Rumours

SOUTH-WEST ALONE ABLE TO CO-OPERATE WITH JAPAN

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, To-day.

The calling of a Fifth National Congress was admitted yesterday afternoon by Mr. Hsiao Fu-chen, veteran Kuomintang leader, who recently returned from Bangkok. His delay in returning here earlier was due to sickness and not to any other cause.

Mr. Hsiao expressed surprise at a Nanking report stating that Siam has recognised Manchukuo. He was then in Bangkok, whose Government strongly denied any likelihood of recognising that State. Nanking newspapers, according to Mr. Hsiao, published reports of economic co-operation between Manchukuo, China and Japan. Mr. Hsiao interprets this as an impending Nanking recognition of Manchukuo.

MILITARY CONFERENCE AT DAIREN

New Policy Towards China Shelved

CONVERSION OF NORTH CHINA IN CO-OPERATION SCHEME

Dairen, To-day.

The military conference at Dairen, which ended in complete understanding and accord, decided to give undivided support of Tokyo's policy towards China.

It was agreed that it is unnecessary at present to formulate a new policy but that it is essential to carry out wholeheartedly the fixed Japanese foreign policy, especially towards China.

The meagre information available indicates that the conference discussed plans for broad Sino-Japanese co-operation, firstly by converting North China as an example in co-operation, thence extending its scope elsewhere in China.

The Okamura-Matsuoka conference resulted in the Southern Manchuria Railway Co. being likely immediately to launch upon North China an economic programme. Reuter.

DUCHESS OF KENT AND ROYAL SON

Satisfactory Condition Reported

London, To-day.

A bulletin issued yesterday regarding H.R.H. the Duchess of Kent and her son records continued excellent progress, and it is stated that the condition of the Duchess and her son is so satisfactory that it is not proposed to issue any further bulletins during the next few days. A final bulletin will be issued at the end of the week.—British Wireless Service.

MR. H. SUNG LEAVES LONDON

London, To-day.

All the personnel of the Chinese Embassy and a number of well-known stage personalities were present at the farewell reception in London of Mr. H. Sung, author of "Lady Precious Stream" who is leaving for America on Saturday on board the Bremen.

"Lady Precious Stream" will be produced in New York shortly by Maurice Guest. Reuter.

LIBERAL GAINS IN CANADA

17 Clergymen And 15 Women Seek Election

RECONSTRUCTIONISTS MAKE POOR START

Ottawa, To-day.

Helped by the unusually mild weather, Canada has recorded one of the heaviest polls in her history. One of the most interesting features was that 27 clergymen and 15 women were seeking election. Early returns show that the Liberals have captured all of the 11 Nova Scotia seats, being eight Liberal gains. The defeated include the Minister of Fisheries, Mr. Ernst.

Liberals have been elected to all four of the Prince Edward Island seats, making three gains. A feature in eastern Canada is the poor showing of the Stevens party, or reconstructionists, who are trailing far behind the older parties.—Reuter.

Overwhelming Liberal Victory Expected

Ottawa, later.

The Bennett Government is certain of defeat and an overwhelming Liberal victory is in prospect. The Liberals have made an almost clean sweep of the Maritime Provinces and have recorded substantial gains elsewhere. Up to the present five Cabinet Ministers have lost their seats.

The position at 2 a.m. Greenwich mean time was:

Liberals 92,
Conservatives 21,
Co-operative Commonwealth Party 2,
Independent Liberals 2.

The Liberals have made 48 gains, with no losses.—Reuter.

BENNETT RETAINS SEAT

Ottawa, later.

Mr. Bennett has retained his seat for Calgary, but 10 Cabinet Ministers up to the present have been defeated.

The position at 3:30 a.m. Greenwich mean time was:

Liberals 133,
Conservatives 31,
Others 5.

The Social Credit Party is leading in Alberta but is unlikely to oust the Liberals. In Saskatchewan—Reuter.

Our photograph shows the transport of British troops to the Mediterranean.

BRITAIN STILL READY TO HELP ITALY

DOOR NOT BARRED EVEN YET

London, To-day.

Britain had professed her readiness to help Italy to secure her legitimate ambitions, as long as she did that without recourse to war, said Mr. Neville Chamberlain in a speech at Glasgow. "Even now, when she has begun hostilities, we have never withdrawn those words and we have not sought in any way to close the door which a little while ago we sought to open to her."

ARGENTINE COMMITTEE FOR ITALY

British Goods To Be Boycotted

LIST OF FIRMS AND PRODUCTS PREPARED

Buenos Aires, To-day.

The "Argentine Committee for Italy" is publishing advertisements in the press calling on Italian residents in the Argentine, who, it is claimed, number 1,500,000, to boycott British goods and is preparing a list of firms and products which are to be boycotted.—Reuter.

U. S. NEUTRALITY POSITION

An Authoritative Interpretation

London, To-day.

Reuter learns that an authoritative interpretation of the neutrality position of the United States was given in the course of two interviews recently between the American Ambassador Mr. R. W. Bingham and Sir Samuel Hoare.

At the first interview Mr. Bingham further elucidated the President's proclamation of October 5 to the effect that any American voluntarily engaging in transactions with either of the belligerents would do so at his own risk, while at the second of the conversation Sir Samuel Hoare made certain observations concerning Mr. Bingham's statement but asked no questions with regard to the attitude of the United States in the event of possible decisions at Geneva as regards sanctions.—Reuter.

EUROPEAN MISSING IN SHANGHAI

Sequel To Ferry Collision

Shanghai, To-day.

Joseph Driscoll, aged 40, a native of Oswestry, Lancashire, employed by the China Printing and Finishing Company, is missing, feared drowned in the Whangpoo.

Driscoll was hurried overboard yesterday when the launch in which he was a passenger collided with a ferryboat. His wife and two children are residing at Accrington, Lancashire.—Reuter.

GOVERNOR OF KURKASKA TENDERS RESIGNATION

Kovno, To-day.

The governor of the Mamel territory of Kurkaska, who has been here for the past few days, tendered his resignation yesterday. Trans-Ocean Service.

"ENTIRE ABSENCE OF THE ENEMY"

TORRENTIAL RAINS CHECK ADVANCE

BRITISH SOMALILAND TRIBE FIGHTS AGAINST ORDERS

Rome, To-day.

With the fall of Adowa and Adigrat and the expected speedy fall of Aksum it is considered here that the first phase of the East African operations have been completed, and it is expected that the second phase, which is due to begin shortly, will meet with little resistance, as reconnaissance flights over the far interior are said to have revealed an "entire absence of the enemy."

It is reported that the Italian advance to Girlogubi has been temporarily suspended at Gerohai by torrential rains which made the movement of troops impossible.

According to an unconfirmed report from Daggahbur the Italians and the Mijertein Somalis have been engaged in a fierce battle in the south-east corner of Abyssinia, where the British and Italian Somaliland meet, and that the British Somaliland tribe of the Dolbahanta sided with the Mijertein tribe despite the British authorities forbidding them to take action and warning them that disobedience would entail the withdrawal of British protection. Many casualties are said to have been suffered by both sides.

FINANCIAL BOYCOTT OF ITALY

Text Of Resolution Published

SWEEPING RESTRICTIONS

Geneva, To-day.

The financial boycott against Italy commended to 52 member States of the League by the Finance Committee was accepted by the Plenary Session of the Sanctions Committee yesterday.

The text of the resolution in question stated: "The Government of the League of Nations member States will immediately take all the necessary steps to make the following operations impossible."

SIX CLAUSES

"All direct or indirect loans to the Italian Government or all subscriptions to loans issued in Italy or elsewhere, directly or indirectly, by the Italian Government."

"All banking credits or others destined, directly or indirectly, for the Italian Government as well as the future execution, through advances, over-drafts or by any other means, of all loan contracts granted, directly or indirectly, to the Italian Government."

"All loans, intended directly or indirectly for public bodies or individuals, actual or hypothetical, established on Italian territory, as well as all subscriptions to any such loan issued in Italy or elsewhere."

"COLONISING" OF ISLANDS

America Seeks New Air Bases

Washington, To-day.

The Aviation Bureau of the Commerce Department confirms that the United States is "colonising" Jarvis, Baker and Howland Islands, as announced yesterday from New York, with the object of using them as potential air bases.

It is stated, however, that the islands have not been annexed, as they were discovered by Americans originally.—Reuter.

WEATHER REPORT

A moderate anticyclone covers the Pacific to the east of Japan and another anticyclone is forming over the upper Yangtze Valley. A depression is moving eastward over Manchuria and a shallow depression is stationary over the Sahel Sea. The local forecast for to-day, as issued by the Royal Observatory this morning, was: north-east winds, moderate, fair.

NEW SILHOUETTES

Straight Coats And Full Swaggers

BELTS GIVE PRINCESS EFFECT TO FUR COATS

Rather loose-hanging, straight coats—quite different from the fitted types of past seasons—and swaggers, with fullness at the back, are the two important silhouettes for which smart women should look when they take advantage of the fur coat sales.

The trend is toward the practical type of slimly tailored coat

WOOLLENS THAT ARE LOVELY

Severity Of The Past Has Gone

Turning to woollen goods, it seems impossible that these charming frivolities should be made of wool at all and show no trace of their red flannel ancestry.

A display of them seems more like a prisoned rainbow than a show of woollen stuffs. This is fortunate for Chinese girls since the severe tweeds and woollens of a bygone day, or even not so very long ago, were not suitable for Chinese gowns, which being so plain and almost uniform in their cut demand the sheerly lovely in materials. Some of these new woollens are plain, but the daintiness of the colouring is charming, others are woven into smart designs, and all of them are lovely.

A Chinese gown, because of its plainness, may riot in the extravagantly gorgeous, the more extravagant, the more gorgeous.

The new velvet are perfectly gorgeous.

DRY LIPS FOR LIPSTICK

Before you blame the brand for the fact that your lipstick does not stay on for hours, check up on your method of application. Lipstick should be smoothed on dry lips, allowed to set for several minutes and then wiped off with cleansing tissues. Do not moisten your lips until the surplus has been removed and rough edges have been straightened.

that can be worn on all occasions. The one important period design for fall was inspired by the Italian Renaissance. It appears in Lyone's semi-sports model of seal-skin.

Seven-eighths length coats that allow the hemlines of dresses to show are extremely good. A coat of this length, lined with woollen or silk to match a special frock, makes an ideal late fall or early winter ensemble.

Plaid Lining
A college girl might have her cousin, muskrat or lapin coat lined with brilliant plaid to match or harmonise with a woollen dress of the same fabric. A woman who lives in town could have dubonnet, dark green or rust silk lining and dress.

Belts on fur coats often are placed above the normal waistline, thereby achieving a princess effect. Collars, generally made of matching fur, are wing varieties that stand up at the throat, flat, tailored types or soft ones that ripple slightly. The new sancer collar which covers the throat and frames the faces can be turned down when the weather is less wintry.

Full Sleeves Held In At Wrists
Shoulders are moulded and close-fitting with full sleeves, held in at the wrists, or bell-shaped ones, without cuffs. Spool buttons, braided frogs and metal buckles are fashionable trimmings. Less expensive furs are as smartly made up as the precious ones.

Accentuating the brunette beauty with chalk-white elastic crepe such as Dolores Del Rio, screen star, is wearing, brings out the best points of midday's face and figure. The smocked jacket has a ruff-like collar that emphasises the brilliant orange background of its printed fabric.

THE SLEEVES ON NEW DRESSES

The Renaissance Trend

Goupy's afternoon dresses showed the Renaissance trend in sleeves that are full from shoulder to elbow. She uses wide belts of gold kid, studded with various jewels. Afternoon models in the Ardane collection are embroidered with rhinestones, mother-of-pearl plastrons and glass beads. On black and dark blue dresses, many with bloused bodies and wide armholes, Ardane uses plaid patterns of rhinestones.

Our own American designers are putting rows of brilliant, jewelled buttons down the back and front of dressier frocks, attaching old fashioned brooches of yellow gold and clusters of seed pearls at the point of V necklines and sewing bright rhinestones here and there on sleeves, belts and cuffs. This is a year to stress femininity in your wardrobe.

A SUBSTANTIAL DISH

To make asparagus a substantial main dish serve with a sauce concocted by mixing two table-spoons flour, two of butter and seasoning to suit and to this adding a cup and a half of hot milk. Let this mixture cook in a double boiler stirring constantly. Then add two hard-boiled eggs, well cut up. Put your asparagus on toast and pour hot sauce over.

After An Illness
Dr. Williams' Pink Pills
Speed Recovery.

Recovery from an illness is often slow because the blood has become impoverished, scanty and thin; therefore to regain health and strength the main essential is to build up the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills rapidly improve the blood, and their efficacy during convalescence is strikingly proved in the case of Mrs. Margaret Brethour of Cornwall, Ontario, Canada, who gives all the credit of her quick recovery to this world famous tonic.

"I was in hospital four months after the birth of my baby," states Mrs. Brethour, "and came home weighing only sixty five pounds. I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and it wasn't long until I weighed ninety five pounds, and my general health was of the best. Every spring since then I take the pills as a tonic, and would not be without them. I strongly recommend them to all mothers."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the ideal tonic in any illness which has impoverished blood as a basic cause. They also are a proved specific for nervous debility, digestive weakness, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, and the ailments peculiar to women. Chemists everywhere sell.

CAPELETS ARE SMART

Jaunty Air From The Backward Drape

At a recent party one very charming young lady wore an ivory silk lace frock and over this a brief capelet made of the same lace, lined with light-peach colour-georgette. It fastened in front with a careless tie, a jaunty air was given by the backward drape over the shoulders. Her hair was cut in slightly waved bangs across her forehead, with the back in shoulder-length curls—the whole effect delightful.

Black velvet made another elbow-length cape, dashing in its brief flared swing.

BRIDGE NOTES
LEADING OR PLAYING
By Ely Culbertson

It has been brought to my attention that many players would appreciate the Code of Contract Bridge Laws more fully if outlined in simple words and collated. The rules on Leading and Playing are fairly simple.
When Declarer releases a card from his own hand face up on the table, that card has been led or played. And not until then. Declarer may expose a card and then decide to play another, providing he does not release it. He gives no available information to partner.
When Declarer touches or calls a card in Dummy, that card is led or played unless Declarer is arranging the cards or pushing other cards aside to secure the desired card. He must label his action by saying "I arrange" or words to that effect when touching cards in Dummy without intention to lead or play them.
When an adversary detaches a card from his hand, that card is led or played when it is so placed or held that his partner sees its face or can call the card.
Thus, the question of when a card is led or played depends upon who leads or plays it.

The Play
In to-day's hand a pass was predicated upon a conviction that the adverse contract could be defeated but "the best laid plans of mice and men gang oft agley."

1—North does not care particularly whether South interprets this as a penalty or takeout double.
2—South's hand is worthless on defence. Nevertheless this bid cannot be recommended.
3—West refuses to sacrifice because he expects to defeat the contract.
"Best Laid Plans"

West had very carefully planned the defence from the very minute that the four spade bid was made. He intended to open a diamond and subsequently underlead his Ace of clubs to secure a diamond ruff.

A ruff together with his three Aces would be enough to defeat the contract.
Declarer regarded the diamond lead with cold suspicion. East's triple raise of the clubs was predicated undoubtedly upon a minor two suiter, a belief confirmed by the opening lead, obviously a singleton. In much less time than it takes to relate, South comprehended West's plan in its every detail. There was only one hope to frustrate it—East might not grasp the situation. Declarer led the six of clubs from dummy at trick two and East was caught flat-footed. By failing to put up the King he spoiled a carefully planned defence. West was obliged to win and had nothing better to play for than a short heart suit in East's hand. The Ace and a small heart failed to give East a ruff. Declarer won the second heart trick in his own hand and in fear of a third round heart ruff led the ten of spades to induce West to duck with a holding of Ace and one small one. West was not to be deceived. He went up with the Ace and led another heart, but it was too late. East had no more trumps.

"SHE"—KING'S THEATRE

Realising all the atmosphere of splendour and magnificence that marked the famous novel upon which it is based, "She" makes its bow on the screen.

The many readers of fiction throughout the world who have been intrigued by this thrilling tale of fabulous wonders, as it was written by H. Rider Haggard, have much in store for them in the lavish translation of the masterpiece into a motion picture. None of the fanciful ingenuity of the author has been sacrificed and much has been added to make it one of the most impressive of spectacles.

The Kingdom of Kor, as Haggard described it, was a magnificent tropical country. It comes to the screen endowed with all the splendour that the combined talents of the studio technical staffs and the wizardry of the motion picture camera can give. The ruler of Kor, the most amazing woman of fiction, appears in the person of Helen Gahagan.

Featured with her are Randolph Scott, as a young modern-day scientist who searches for, and finds a flaming fountain of eternal youth, Nigel Bruce, another scientist who shares Scott's adventures, and Helen Mack, a mortal woman who wages a fierce conflict with the pagan queen for the love of Scott.

"THE CRUSADES"—QUEEN'S THEATRE

Surpassing even his magnificent spectacle of the old silent days, "The Ten Commandments," Cecil B. DeMille's "The Crusades" will certainly be rated among the finest films of this year.

The film relates one of the most dramatic stories of history; of the mustering of the great Kings of Christendom, of their march against the great forces of the Saladin, of the siege and conquest of Acre, and the final peace at Jerusalem.

Henry Wilcoxon is given the most amazing role of his career as Richard the Lion Hearted, and Loretta Young, who is more suited to these kind of roles than any other actress of the screen (remember "Clive of India"), makes a poignantly beautiful Berengaria.

The romance woven into the film is beautifully pieced together. Because his army is starving, Richard is forced to marry Berengaria, and, although the marriage is at first distasteful to both sides, they eventually fall in love outside the gates of Acre.

"FATHER BROWN, DETECTIVE"—ALHAMBRA THEATRE

One of the most lovable detective creations of modern fiction, Father Brown, comes to the screen at the Alhambra Theatre for the first time, in the first series of his adventures in the difficult task of solving crime.
Father Brown, although actually quite unrelated with any other figure, is more easily compared with the "Thin Man" type of detective, in the portrayal of which William Powell excelled, than either Sherlock Holmes or Philo Vance.
Father Brown, as Walter Connolly sees him, will find a place in the hearts of most cinemagoers. His crisp humour and witty remarks, his clergyman appearance, which is an essential part of his make-up, and the face which proves to be only a mask for the keen powers of perception that lie behind it, all add greatly to the popularity of the film.

"THE LITTLE COLONEL"—ORIENTAL THEATRE

In "The Little Colonel," Shirley Temple is co-starred with Lionel Barrymore. In a role that will further endear her to the millions.
Her dancing feet, smiling eyes, and honey curls are her ammunition in her campaign to soften the heart of an old colonel, who fought the Civil War, was over, and nursed his prejudices.

Fredric March, film hero, and his wife, sailed last month aboard the giant Normandie for Europe, where the popular film star will spend a much-needed vacation.

In keeping with the importance of the stars and the vehicle, a supporting cast of stellar calibre has been assembled. It includes Evelyn Venable, a brilliant young Shakespearean actress, John Lodge, Sidney Blackmer and William Burrell.

"THEIR BIG MOMENT"—STAR THEATRE

When psychic powers are invoked to solve a murder mystery that has defied practical solution, there are bound to be thrills and chills. And when that inimitable comedienne, ZaSu Pitts, enacts the role of an accidental medium who makes good, interest is doubly assured. Such proves to be the case in the current REO-Radio Picture's comedy-thriller, "Their Big Moment." Miss Pitts and Slim Summerville co-star.
It is one of those all-too-rare pictures in which the plot keeps moving at a swift pace from the very outset.

"THE MARK OF THE VAMPIRE"—MAJESTIC THEATRE

Bela Lugosi, who thrilled and chilled millions of film-goers by his amazing performance in "Dracula," succeeds in inspiring the same awe in his latest release, which deals with the same theme, although, if possible, is even more gruesome.

Like "Dracula," the picture is frequently interrupted to show a vampire flying in ghostly shadows across the screen. The story is a thrilling one, and works up to a most extraordinary climax.

STOWAWAY PUZZLE
Deaf Mute Who Cannot Be Landed

When the United States liner Washington sailed from Southampton for New York recently she carried a deaf and dumb stowaway who was beginning his second transatlantic voyage in her. He has no passport and no identity papers.

He was found on board the Washington when she was two days out from New York on her last eastbound voyage. Answering all questions in writing, he said he was born at Stratford, London, and reached New York as a stowaway in the Majestic.

He could not be landed at Plymouth when the Washington called there, or at Havre or Hamburg, owing to lack of proof of his identity.
No trace of the man could be found when the steamship company sent an official to search the records at Somerset House. He now says that he was born at Brooklyn, and is an American citizen.

Autumn Means Trouble On The N.W. Frontier

(By ROLAND WILD)

In England autumn means roof-trouble and a plague of mosquitoes. On the North-West Frontier it means shots from the highlands on to moving troops below. And, like the worst boy in the school, the Mohmand tribes are always blamed for the trouble as soon as it breaks out.

Not without reason; the Mohmand fingers his rifle as soon as his hands are released from the plough that scratches the surface of his dry plains. When the crops are in he has a few months' leisure. And it is in his leisure moments that he remembers that he is descended from warriors.

In the old days, meaning not more than twelve years ago, the autumn was dreaded on the North-West Frontier. It meant weary and dangerous marches by long trails of infantry; it meant sniping by invisible men in terrible country. It meant the stuff that the old-fashioned frontier heroes were made of—which was not quite so romantic near-to.

To-day's news shows that those times have passed. The heroes of the future are pilots and map-makers, observers, and photographers. I have seen the Air Force at work, studied their maps, flown with them over the terrifying natural fortresses of the Khyber Pass and the Naliki Ridge—with one eye trained backwards to the nearest landing-ground.

Yet, when the first aeroplane landed at Peshawar there were violent complaints from old-fashioned staff officers because of "trespassing." To-day, the aeroplane not only saves the life of Tommy Atkins, but is able to frighten the restive Mohmand into holding his hand. The Air Force has replaced much of the old dangerous game of spying and survey from the ground, and if a lesson needs to be taught, then there is only the roar of an engine, a flash in the clear sky, and far away, the thunder of dropping bombs.

This autumn tanks have been used for the first time in tribal territory. Even so, they have depended on the preliminary work of the Air Force. If the truth be known, they were probably employed more for the business of conducting negotiations with the tribes, after the seasonal attack of restiveness had calmed down, than as actual weapons of offence. They are to be used in future to replace the highly vulnerable files of men who used to make their painful marches over the bare countryside. Ground forces will do the "mopping up" in future. Both the spying and the defensive work will be done from the air.
So your new hero of the frontier is one of those blithe, dis-

The Mohmand, naturally, being stubborn in the belief that his marksmanship "with an old stolen rifle" will put fear into the hearts of any armed forces on earth, will take time to learn the lesson. Indeed, it is doubtful whether he will ever learn the hopelessness of attacking modern scientific skill.

SIGNALS BEAT SERVICE CORPS AT SOCCER CRICKET OFFERS TO SOUTH AFRICANS SOME PLAYERS LIKELY TO RETURN

£12,000 PROFIT FOR TURF PITCHES
(By Thomas Moulton)

London, September 21.

ON a morning so cheerless that their departure from England would be considerably eased the South African cricket team sailed for home yesterday.

Fourteen players and the manager, Mr. S. J. Snook, left Southampton by the Union Castle liner Windsor Castle. R. J. Williams, who has secured a business appointment in London, stayed behind.

I learn that there is a possibility of other members of the side returning to take up cricketing careers in this country. A number of tempting offers were made by League clubs when the South Africans visited the north.

BIG GOLF CHANGE WHICH AMERICA MAY OPPOSE

Lost Hole Penalty
For Lost Ball

OLD RULE MAY BE REVIVED

(By GEORGE GREENWOOD)

London, September 18.

A revolutionary change in the rule affecting the lost ball in golf will be discussed at the meeting of the Royal and Ancient Club, at St. Andrews, next week.

Sir Esmay Blackwell will submit a proposal having the effect of reverting to the old rule in match play—"lost ball, lost hole."

The present rule permits a player who concludes that his ball may be lost to play a provisional ball. Should the first ball not be found within the prescribed limit of five minutes, the second comes into play, and the player is penalised stroke and distance.

If the ball is lost from the drive the player counts three with the second ball.

The proposed alteration is intended to prevent the possibility of players gaining an advantage from bad shots, a contingency not infrequent under the present rule.

I doubt whether America will agree to the change because it was at her instigation that the new rule came into force. American golfers are of the opinion that to forfeit the hole because the ball is lost is far too severe a penalty, a view shared by most golfers in Great Britain.

BRITISH GOLFER'S FRENCH SUCCESS

Alaric de Forest, the British golfer, won the championship of the south-west of France at La Nivelle with an aggregate of 282-70-70-71-71.

SPRINGBOKS ACCEPT HOME RUGBY OFFER

The secretary of the Rugby Football Union announces that an invitation to send a British team to South Africa in 1936 having been found impracticable, the offer of the four Home unions to send a team in 1938 has been accepted by the South Africa Board.

When this was revealed to me I gathered that considerable disappointment had been created because in certain instances the approach was made to the players direct instead of through the manager.

H. R. Cameron, K. G. Viljoen, E. L. Dalton, and A. J. Bekker, pressed doubt when I asked whether they would be able to join the next South African team in this country. Indeed, their business engagements are likely to compel their retirement from representative cricket.

Wade Again Captain?

Fortunately, some of the other players, including H. F. Wade, E. A. Rowan, and I. J. Siedle, will be available if they are called upon.

I think it is safe to predict that if Wade reappears among us in 1940 he will still be the captain.

At a luncheon on board the liner yesterday Mr. Snook mentioned that the profits of the tour would be about £12,000. "I do not know how the money will be used," he said in an interview, "but it is likely that a proportion will be devoted to laying down more turf pitches in the Union."

"At the moment the cost of transportation of grass from Durban, the one place where the soil is suitable for turf wickets, is the bar to the general use of such pitches, but I think that eventually there will be turf wickets in all the cricket centres in South Africa."

"Doping" Wickets

Mr. Snook also condemned the practice of "doping" wickets. H. F. Wade urged the authorities to "go ahead and add the experimental lb.w. rule to the laws of cricket."

Only Balaskas of the returning players is not thoroughly fit. Ill-health and injuries have dogged him all the summer, and a fortnight ago he went through an operation for tonsillitis.

Among past and present-day cricketers who joined in a rousing "send-off" to the South Africans at Waterloo Station were Mr. A. J. Webb, the 80-year-old president of Middlesex, Mr. P. F. Warner, Mr. H. D. G. Leveson Gower (president of Surrey), E. R. T. Holmes, F. R. Brown, P. G. H. Fender and "Razor" Smith (Surrey), A. P. F. Chapman (Kent), and H. Lee and J. Newman, who have coached some of the team.

Viscount Cobham, president of the M.C.C., declared during lunch at Southampton that the South Africans had done a great service to cricket all over the world.

FRANCE TO MEET GERMANY
AT RUGBY

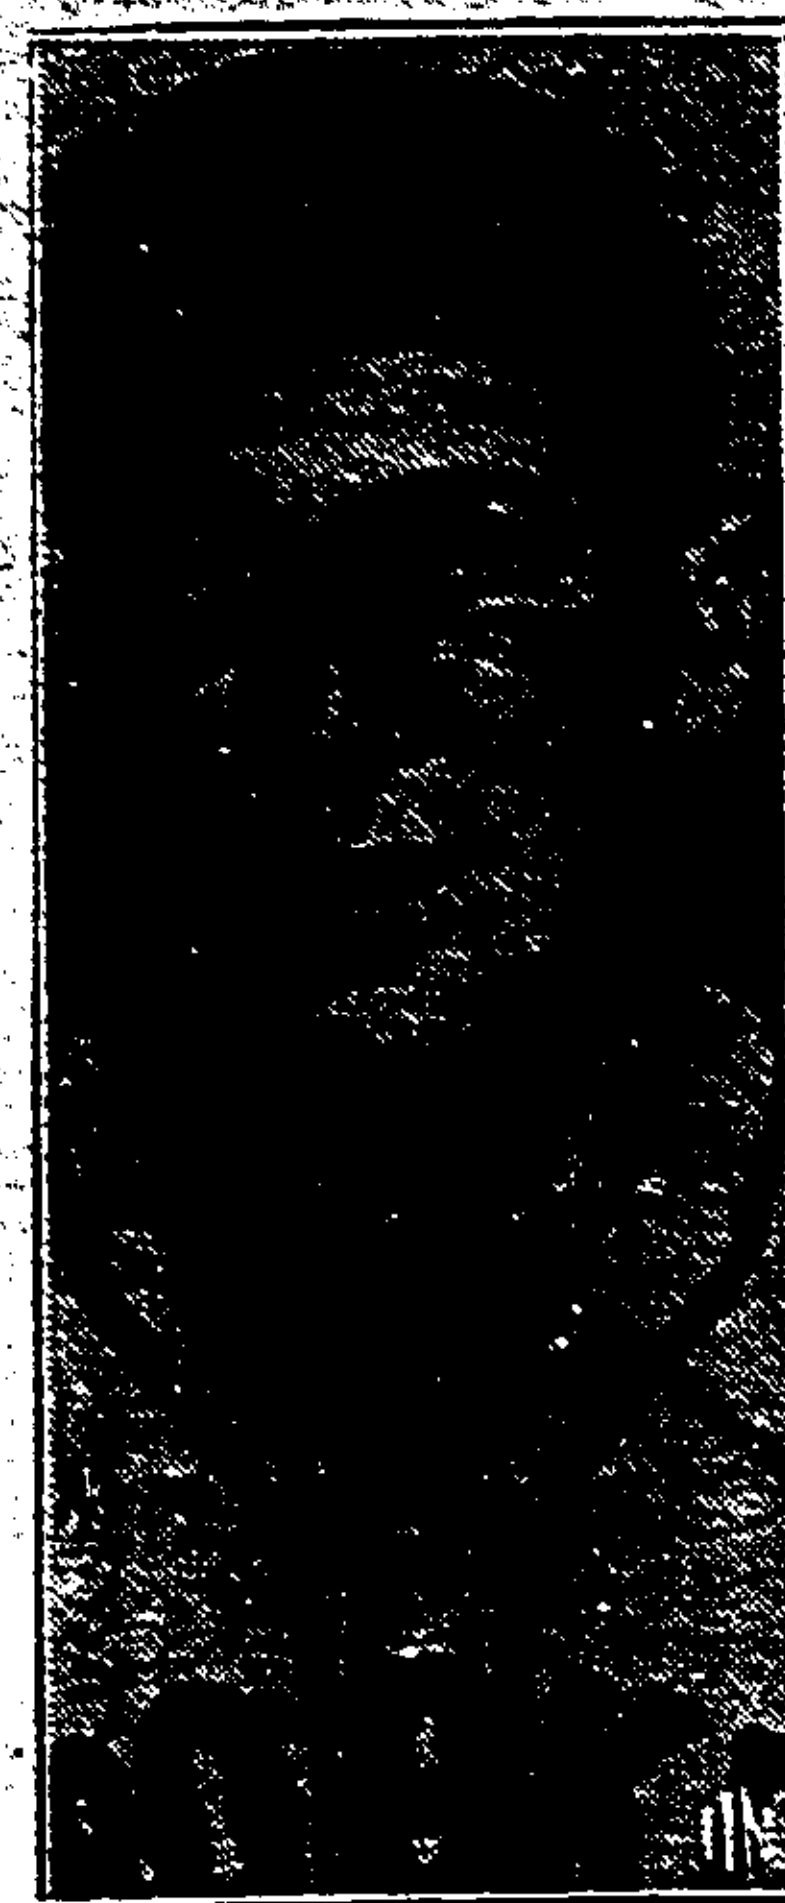

France will play a Rugby match against Germany at Hanover next March. Before this French teams are to play five other matches against German sides.

Paavo Nurmi Denies He Is Out Of Competitive Training

Helsingfors, October 2.—Paavo Nurmi, the famous Finnish athlete, to-day denied rumours that he was through with competitive racing.

"I have made no decision," he declared when interviewed, "concerning the end of my racing career, still less have I made a statement to that effect. I may not get another chance in the near future, and cannot be blind to the fact that I am getting old—I am over 37—but it is quite possible that I shall appear again if circumstances permit."

The "Flying Finn", however, refused to speak of his plans, although his friends assert that he is now in better physical condition than for a long time, and that he may still produce startling

An hour's slugging match in a monoplane high over Toronto resulted in the death of Len Koencke (above), star outfielder of Brooklyn Dodgers, and the unsuccessful holding on manslaughter charges of the two pilots of the chartered plane. Koencke's skull was fractured by a fire extinguisher wielded as a club.

MISS RIEBEN LOSES FRENCH GOLF TITLE BID

Mme. Lacoste's 4th
Successive Win

WELSH GIRL'S PUTTING BREAKS DOWN

Chantaco, September 21.

Miss Isabella Rieben (Aberdorey) was beaten by 2 and 1 in the 36-holes final of the French Women's open championship here to-day by Mme. Rene Lacoste, of Chantaco. Mme. Lacoste thus won the title for the fourth time, her previous successes being gained in 1926, 1927 and 1930 as Mlle. Thion De La Chaume.

The players were level at the end of the first 18 holes, both being round in 79. Mme. Lacoste was one up at the turn in the second round, and after Miss Rieben had squared at the 13th, she won the 15th and 16th and halved the next hole for the match.

Miss Rieben was out in 42 to 41. Mme. Lacoste won the 10th and the next six holes were halved. During this period weak putting by the Welsh player prevented her taking advantage of several chances to reduce her arrears, and at the 15th she was lucky to scramble a half.

A Good Recovery
At the last two holes, however, she made excellent recoveries and sank two good putts to finish the round all square.

Miss Rieben's troubles started again at the beginning of the second round, and she lost two of the first three holes. Both players holed 15ft putts at the sixth. Miss Rieben got a hole back before the turn, where she was one down, and she nearly drew level at the 12th, where Mme. Lacoste holed from the edge of the green for a half in three.

The match was brought to all square at the next hole, but Mme. Lacoste won the 15th and 16th and halved the 17th in three for the match.

GILBERT IS NEPIA'S WORTHY
SUCCESSOR

Thirty years ago the All Blacks had a tearaway victory by 55 points to 4. In 1924, on a rainy day that kept down scoring, they put up only 11 points, but the counties never broke through at all.

Such standards are obviously unreliable. Meanwhile it is to be hoped that the injury to W. E. Hadley, the visitors' brilliant hooker, is not so serious as it sounds.

At present he is coaching the long-distance runners who will wear Finland's colours in next year's Olympic Games at Berlin.

SMALL UNITS LEAGUE ENCOUNTER

SINCLAIR OUTSTANDING FOR WINNERS

BUTTERY'S FINE PROMISE

(By "Rover")

IN a very interesting and clean soccer game the Royal Corps of Signals beat the Royal Army Service Corps by three clear goals in the Small Units Army Football League on the Chatham Road ground yesterday.

The standard of play was never very high, though at times there were some nice combined movements and displays of individual brilliance. There was not very much to choose between the two teams though the Signals had the somewhat better forward line.

Sinclair played a great game for the Signals at centre-half. He took on himself a lot of work and kept his forwards well piled with passes. His wing-halves, Lomax, on the right, and Roberts, on the other flank, gave him every assistance in defensive work, but were not so prominent in helping their forwards.

Cox and Hirst were fairly safe, though the latter had an anxious time watching Clarke and Cooper, both of whom play for the combined R.A.O.C. and R.A.S.C. in the Hong Kong League; he, however, acquitted himself well.

In the forward line the most danger originated from the right wing combination, Short and Buttery. The latter is very fast and has in him the makings of a good footballer. Apart from scoring the first goal for his side, he kept Short continually on the run with long swinging passes.

Fielding, the Signals centre-forward, was too closely watched by the opposite centre-half to shine, but he was nevertheless able to send in two good shots at goal which should have met with a better fate.

Martin, in goal, did not have much to do and dealt confidently with the few shots that were directed at him.

Jennings Outstanding
For the losers, Jennings at centre-half, was outstanding. He never gave up trying and, though his team was for the greater part of the game on the defensive; was able to send his forwards away with long passes to the wings.

The other two halves, though never particularly brilliant, did what was expected of them well. McKay deserved special mention for the manner he watched Short and Buttery.

In the first half Laod played at centre-forward, but took a long time to settle down and did nothing of note. In the second half he went in goal, in place of Clarke, and here he seemed more at home. In spite of an injured hand he saved his side from a heavier defeat by leaving his goal at the right moment on two occasions, and by great anticipation and safe handling at other times.

The backs, Bashford and Blisset, were good. The movements of the forward line were at times very neat, but when they reached the goal areas they were very weak in their shooting, or else dilly-dallied with the ball till they lost it.

Out Of Position
Binkly, on the right wing, was playing in an unaccustomed position and was never at ease. He missed two glorious opportunities of scoring in the latter part of the game.

The game commenced with the Signals pressing and, after Clarke had saved shots from Fielding and Shannon, he was easily beaten by a well-placed shot by Buttery.

In the second half the Service Corps were often in their opponents' half but were unable to equalise.

R.C.S.—Martin; Cox and Hirst; Lomax, Sinclair and Roberts; Short, Buttery, Fielding, Shannon and Thompson.

equalise. Thompson made the game safe for the Signals when he took advantage of a miss-kick by Bashford to score, and a few minutes later Sinclair added the third goal from a penalty, awarded for hands.

R.A.S.C.—Clarke; Bashford and Blisset; Marshall, Jennings and McKay; Binkly, Amos, Land, Tribe and Cooper.

R.C.S.—Martin; Cox and Hirst; Lomax, Sinclair and Roberts; Short, Buttery, Fielding, Shannon and Thompson.

old record, made by Miss Jessie Anderson, of Craigie Hill, another member of the British team, was made in the first round of the championship, yesterday by Miss Jessie Anderson, another of the tourists.

Miss Anderson, with 155, was second. Mrs. J. B. Walker (163) third, and Miss Phyllis Wade tied the course by eight strokes. The first round was with 170.

With a round of 71 to-day she had a score of 151 for the two rounds. Her round to-day broke the previous women's record for the course by eight strokes.

Thompson made the game safe for the Signals when he took advantage of a miss-kick by Bashford to score, and a few minutes later Sinclair added the third goal from a penalty, awarded for hands.

R.A.S.C.—Clarke; Bashford and Blisset; Marshall, Jennings and McKay; Binkly, Amos, Land, Tribe and Cooper.

FREDDIE FOX BADLY INJURED AFTER FALL

BAHRAM RETIRES TO STUD
WITH UNBEATEN RECORD

(By HOTSPUR)

Doncaster, September 12.

After Bahram's great victory in the St. Leger, I learned to-night that the condition of Freddie Fox, the veteran jockey, who would have ridden the colt but for his accident here yesterday, was more serious than was at first thought.

Fox, who is 47, was injured in a fall during a race. He is now in a nursing home, and is suffering from a fractured skull. At present only his wife is allowed to see him.

His condition, however, is as well as can be expected. This afternoon he was able to listen-in to the broadcast of the race for the St. Leger.

Fox rode Bahram to victory in this year's Derby and also in the Two Thousand Guineas. To-day his place was taken by C. Smirke.

A Brilliant Win

It would have been a dull St. Leger this afternoon but for the brilliance of Bahram, who won it as easily as it has ever been won.

Thus it is in a blaze of glory that Bahram retires from the turf, with the rare distinction of never having been beaten. The Aga Khan does not intend to race him again. He will go to the stud next season to earn, perhaps, much more money as a sire than he has earned as a racehorse, though it is estimated that he has gained for his owner over £43,000 in stake money.

The Totalisator takings on the race amounted to £16,512. The record for an individual race is £29,260—taken on the Royal Hunt Cup last June.

Miss Pam Barton Breaks A Record, And Wins Title

Canberra, September 12.—Miss Pam Barton, a member of the British women's golf team, won the Federal Territory championship on the Royal Canberra Club's course to-day.

With a round of 71 to-day she had a score of 151 for the two rounds. Her round to-day broke the previous women's record for the course by eight strokes.

Thompson made the game safe for the Signals when he took advantage of a miss-kick by Bashford to score, and a few minutes later Sinclair added the third goal from a penalty, awarded for hands.

R.A.S.C.—Clarke; Bashford and Blisset; Marshall, Jennings and McKay; Binkly, Amos, Land, Tribe and Cooper.

R.C.S.—Martin; Cox and Hirst; Lomax, Sinclair and Roberts; Short, Buttery, Fielding, Shannon and Thompson.

BERLIN SHARE
MARKETSharp Depression
In Prices

"CHINA MAIL" SPECIAL

Berlin, To-day.
The share market yesterday was extremely depressed, buyers being almost entirely absent, so that for want of takers even the small amount of stock offered caused a sharp depression in prices. This stagnation was chiefly due to the news from Paris hinting strongly at the possibility of a breach in diplomatic relations between Great Britain and Italy.

Fixed interest securities again proved more resistant and although price declines occurred they were not numerous.

Gold mortgage bonds shared the general stagnation, but where business was done prices were usually unchanged. Call money was at 3 per cent.—Trans-Ocean Service.

NEW YORK STOCK
MARKETIndustrial Securities
Should AdvanceCALMER VIEW TAKEN OF EUROPEAN SITUATION

In their market report, Messrs.
S. E. Lery and Company, correspondents for Messrs. White Weld and Company, New York, state:—

Stock: A calmer view of the European situation, together with a cessation of selling of railroad issues, caused industrial issues to advance. We anticipate further advances in industrial securities in the near future. Total sales:
1,590,000 shares.

Wheat: Uncertainties in connection with the elections in Canada is a disturbing factor.
Many traders have been discouraged and have liquidated their long positions. Buying by mills was only moderate. We would prefer accumulation on the scale-down. Business done: Wheat:
$0.113,000 bushels. Corn: 6,568,
000 bushels.

Cotton: Weather conditions are ideal and the crop movement is increasing. Demand is expanding, which makes sharp declines unlikely. We would buy on setbacks.
Silk: Excellent buying by the Trade and demand for consumption of finished goods continues.
The advance in futures is rather rapid and we would take profits on further bulges. Total sales:
207 lots.

Flash: Steel mill activity is estimated at 50.4 per cent of capacity, against 49.7 per cent
the previous week.
Cram's estimate of production of Cars and Trucks in the United States and Canada during the week ended October 12 indicates 31,643 units.

COMMODITY PRICES

The following quotations have been received by Reuters:

SANMENWAN BAY AS A PORT CONVERSION SOUGHT BY CHEKIANG PROJECT AID TO PROSPERITY

Hangchow.

As a step to enhance further the prosperity of Chekiang, the Provincial Department of Reconstruction is planning to develop Sanmenwan, a bay on the east coast of Chekiang, into a port.

The suggestion for converting Sanmenwan into a port was made as early as the Third Year of the Chinese Republic (1914). But owing to various difficulties, the plan has not been realised. The Provincial Department of Reconstruction is now, however, determined to carry out the plan.

A preparatory committee, it is understood, will shortly be organised jointly by the various departments of the Chekiang Provincial Government and other government organisations concerned. The director of the Provincial Department of Reconstruction will be ex officio chairman of the committee while the representatives of various other provincial departments and government organisations will be members.

Labour-Relief

According to a scheme now being worked out by the Provincial Department of Reconstruction, the first stage of work will be reclamation by labour-relief. It is estimated that a total of $500,000 will be needed for this purpose. Of this amount, $200,000 will be appropriated from the labour-relief funds of the province, while the remaining $300,000 from the proceeds from reclaimed lands.

Improvement of communications and irrigation will also be important items in the scheme. These will be undertaken step by step, when sufficient funds are raised.

Situated south of the Siang Shan Harbour at a point just about the middle of the east coast of China, Sanmenwan holds a key position in communications, coastal and inland. Both the South China and the North China coastal navigation routes lie through this bay. More than 30 ocean steamers make regular calls here, besides a large number of coastal steamboats and junks plying between here and various points along the coast.

Land Communications

As to land communications, Ninghai, in the vicinity of the bay is directly connected with Hangchow, capital of Chekiang, by a highway. Plans have now been formulated to extend the highway from Ninghai to Sanmenwan, and to build a new highway linking Sanmenwan with Haiyu, about 10 kilometers east of the bay, where a road connects with Wuyi on the Chekiang-Kiangsi Railway. Flanked on the north, west and south by hilly lands in Siangshan, Ninghai, Nanting and Ninghai districts, the bay occupies a strategic position. Forts have also been built along the coast here.

To keep back the surging waves of the sea a strong stone embankment has been built along the coast, while light-houses have been erected off the coast to facilitate navigation.

According to the latest census taken, there are about 75,000 households in the bay, numbering about 370,000 persons. Most of the inhabitants are farmers and fishermen.

Agricultural Boost

The mild climate, abundance of rain, and fertile soil in Sanmenwan are most suitable for agriculture. About 60 per cent of the land here is cultivable hilly land, while the remaining 40 per cent is composed of watery fields and sandy isles. There is at present a total 270,000 mow of farmland, and uncultivated land measures about 35,000 mow. Rice, wheat, cotton, beans, and tobacco grow in abundance here.

Pines, firs, cypresses, and plum, peach and orange trees cover the hills in the bay. Tientai, Tsingshui, Kaitang, Pichia, Ssetze, and other hills here may be easily turned into big forests with the adoption of scientific afforestation methods.

Fish and salt are the two biggest products along the coast. More than 3,000 inhabitants are engaged in the manufacture of salt from sea water. An average of 7,500,000 piculs of salt are manufactured every season. Fishermen also occupy a high percentage of the population in the bay. Large quantities of fish are daily shipped from here to other cities—Central News Agency.

NAVAL BASE AT SELETAR

Test Of New Dry Dock Successful

BATTLESHIPS CAN BE RE-FITTED

Singapore, October 5.

The test of the great dry dock at the Naval Base at Seletar, into which 68,750,000 gallons of water were pumped last month from the Straits of Johore, has been successful.

This terrific pressure of water on the sides and floor of the dock proved that it could take the most powerful ships in the British Navy H.M.S. Hood, Rodney, and Nelson.

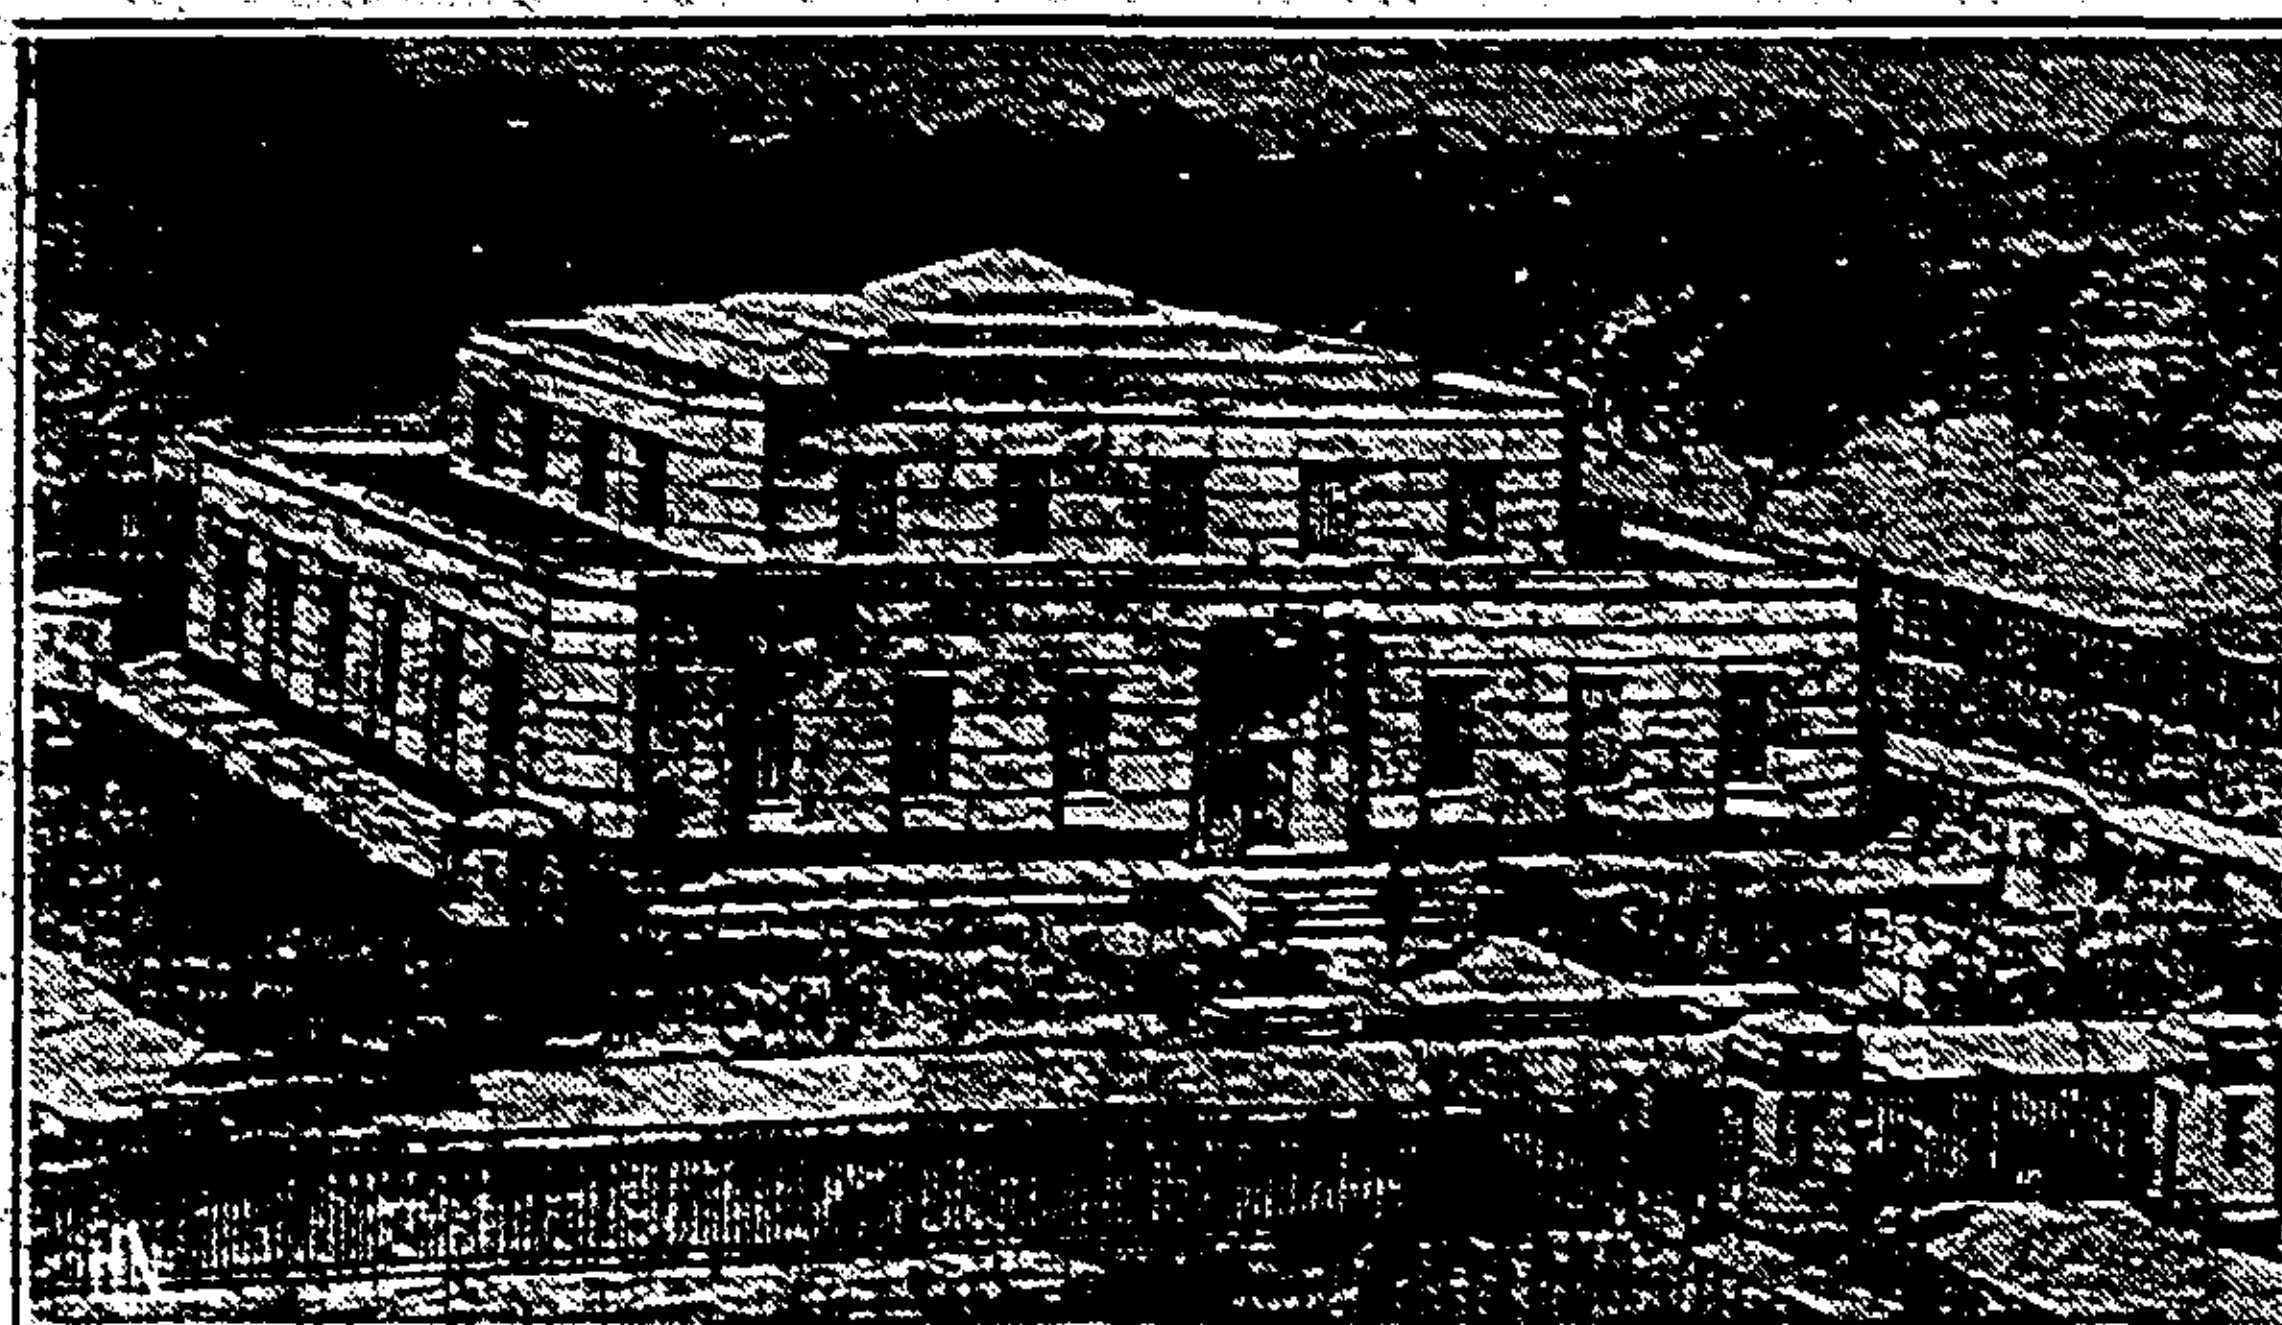

When the gate of the dock is completed and placed in position Britain will be able to bring her fleet east of Suez in an emergency.

At present the nearest base with a dock to repair and refit battleships and cruisers is at Malta.

Engineering Triumph
The test of the dock took nearly a fortnight. Two 12-inch pipes were used, giving a capacity of 6,000 gallons a minute. Observations were taken after every lift of 4 ft. 6 in. by the aid of 4 posts, more than 60 feet high, fixed along the floor of the dock.

The dock is 130 feet wide by 1,000 feet long. It is broader than, but not quite as long as, the graving dock at Southampton.

The successful completion of this dock, which had to be built on treacherous ground, is regarded as a triumph for the British engineers.

This architect's drawing shows the massive building which guards the elevator shaft leading to the underground gold vaults which the Government plans to build at Fort Knox, Kentucky. When the concrete and steel subterranean fortress is complete, billions in U. S. bullion will be transferred to it from treasuries and mints along the Atlantic seaboard.

The representatives of Austria and Hungary made reservations, the latter stating that his country was in the position of a debtor country and unable to grant credit and therefore uninterested in the sanctions, but would refer the matter to his Government. The Austrian delegates expressed the same views.

The chairman announced that it was understood that the Red Cross and humanitarian institutions in Italy were exempted from the sanctions. Mr. de Valera hoped that the same would apply to religious institutions.

M. Litvinoff urged the League to consider the position of members not participating in the sanctions.

IMMEDIATE APPLICATION
The French proposal was adopted that the Committee of Eighteen should immediately start an examination of measures for putting the sanctions into practical application, for which two sub-committees were established earlier. The meeting concluded at 7.10 p.m.

The sub-committee to examine measures for putting the sanctions into application will consist of the United Kingdom, France, Poland, Spain, Russia, Canada, Switzerland, Holland, Belgium and Sweden. The Mutual Assistance Committee will consist of the United Kingdom, France, Poland, Russia, Spain, Greece, Rumania, Yugoslavia, Mexico and South Africa—Reuter.

FRENCH SUGGESTION
Geneva: At the suggestion of the French delegate the Committee of Eighteen decided to establish two sub-committees, the first to examine simultaneously a general boycott of Italian exports and the application of an embargo on the sales of certain key products to Italy; the second to examine the question of mutual assistance and help to States hit by the interruption of trade.

Another sub-committee will be appointed to examine how soon the measures agreed in principle can be enforced. It is hoped that the financial sanctions may be enforced by October 31.

ARGENTINE'S POSITION
The Argentine delegation's statement says that the Argentine representatives will vote "affirmatively ad referendum" for the sanctions, but declares that there are certain steps which the Executive cannot constitutionally put into effect. The delegation also request that account shall be taken of the special position of the Argentine with over 1,000,000 Italian settlers. The statement is interpreted to imply that the Argentine will press for special consideration and possibly delay in the enforcement of certain measures of the sanctions—Reuter.

EARLIER MESSAGES

Commodity Prices Soar In Rome

Rome: The prices of all commodities, especially those from abroad, are rising uninterruptedly, and the Secretary of the Fascist Party has ordered a new and strict control of prices. Strong measures will be taken against those who are found to be hoarding or not revealing the existence of large supplies.

"TO OUR ENGLISH FRIENDS"

Paris: An article headed "To Our English Friends," which is thought to have been inspired by the editor of Le Petit Parisien, protests against the idea that the friendship of Britain and France is in any way clouded by serious differences of opinion.

Certain divergencies between the public opinion of both countries, it declares, are only due to the fact that the press is insufficiently informed about diplomatic negotiations being carried on behind the scenes and is being misled by outward appearances.

There were Frenchmen, for instance, who feared that the energy which the British delegation is applying to accelerate the enforcement of sanctions is the result of a relentless decision, as conciliation is impossible, to kill Signor Mussolini politically, and, if necessary, to go to war in order to achieve this end.

On the other hand, there were Englishmen who believed that M. Laval's attempts to bring about a conciliation was for the purpose of masking other plans against England and the League of Nations. In Paris, declares the writer, there were no dark plans of this nature being hatched.

There was only a steady determination to seize every opportunity for concluding the drama in which France, England, Italy and the League were the chief actors. "The British Fleet has given proof of its existence," continues the newspaper. "It can now return to its base without any danger, and by so doing would only add to British prestige."

NO FIENDISH PLAN
The whole affair depends on the negotiations being conducted, but for months nobody has known how to negotiate. There had been much talk, it is true—sometimes too much—but the parties concerned had not come together or even suspected one another of malicious intentions.

There was no fiendish plan in London to depose Signor Mussolini from his ministerial chair.

MISINTERPRETATION
Paris: Commenting on the statements made to the press by Premier Laval at Clermont-Ferrand on Sunday evening, when the Premier reported that he had discussed military sanctions with Mr. Anthony Eden, Le Jour writes that this statement has been misinterpreted to mean that M. Laval had been contemplating such sanctions.

It is, declares the newspaper, by no means the case, as only Mr. Eden contemplated them. He was entitled to do so just the same as France is entitled not to participate in them in any form.

Turning to affairs at home, it is stated that, while at Clermont-Ferrand, M. Laval agreed to stand as candidate for the department of Puy de Dome in next Sunday's Senate election. The Premier already heads the Radical Party's list for the Seine department, but since his prospects there are considered to be very unfavourable, his political friends have persuaded him to accept also the candidature for Puy de Dome, which is held to be a safe seat.

SATISFACTION IN ROME
Rome: The differences of opinion which have become apparent at Geneva as regards the nature and application of the economic sanctions, are hailed with unconcealed

FOR EMPIRE WAR MEMORIAL

Australian Marble For Monument

Canberra. Australia has fallen into line with the other Dominions in assisting with the monument to be erected at Boulogne by ex-Servicemen of the Empire to commemorate the landing on French soil of the first British troops in 1914.

A piece of Australian marble has been provided by the Commonwealth Government for incorporation in the monument.

Each of the other Dominions has agreed to supply a slab of stone to represent it.

WOLVES TERRORISE PEIPING

Pack Attacks Group Of Children

A pack of half-a-hundred ravenous wolves descended on a small village outside Peiping last month and according to terrified villagers, bit some 30 children and carried three of them off.

The wolves had been roaming about in the mountains near by for some time.

satisfaction by the Italian Sunday newspapers.

Referring to the energy displayed by Mr. Anthony Eden in ignoring any opposition to the British proposal, the Voce d'Italia protests against the British Minister's assertions of England's friendship for Italy, and only regards such affirmations as ridiculous. The British nation itself might be, friendly disposed to Italy, but the attitude of the Government was nothing but hostile.

The British warships in the Mediterranean, asserts the newspaper in this connection, already do not return the salutes given them by Italian vessels. The Italo-Abyssinian colonial war had become a question of world importance by a movement being set in force against Fascist Italy, which it only desired to destroy, because to-day the Italians had again become a nation, conscious of their rights and strength.

TANGIER VOLUNTEERS
Tangier: One hundred and fifty two Italian residents here left for Italy on Sunday in order to volunteer for service in East Africa.

GERMAN LEAGUE WITHDRAWAL
Paris: Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations, which became a legally accomplished fact yesterday, restricts her from any obligation towards the dispute between Italy and Geneva, pointed out Le Jour in a leading article. The question of the reform of the League is once more raised by Germany's effective withdrawal, the journal continues, adding that even if the League succeeds in coming through the trial of its strength, as imposed by the Abyssinian dispute, it cannot exist without the assistance of the strongest power in central Europe.

LOCARNO QUESTION
Finally, the question must be examined as to whether the Locarno agreement, which was concluded between the League members, and is within the framework of the League Covenant, does not automatically lapse on the day when one signatory ceases to be a member of the League—Trans-Ocean Service.

THE SILENT GUIDE TO HONG KONG.

WHAT IT IS: The "Silent Guide" consists of a large illuminated street map of Hong Kong (18 feet by 6 feet). The map, which is coloured, is painted on a ground glass background, behind which are over 5,000 small lamps. At a convenient distance from the large map is a small switchboard containing a number of six inch glass panels for subscribers' names, addresses and telephone numbers, each with its own button switch.

WHERE IT WILL BE: At the entrance to the Star Ferry wharf (Hong Kong side) where it will be seen by 90 per cent. of the tourists and other visitors arriving at Hong Kong, besides the many thousands of residents who make daily use of the Star Ferry on their way to and from business.

WHAT IT WILL DO: Anyone wishes to find the location of an office, hotel, theatre, bank, shop or other business in Hong Kong. He goes to the switchboard where he finds the names of subscribers, properly classified and arranged alphabetically. He presses the appropriate button and the subscriber's name on the panel board immediately lights up. At the same time, on the large street map, a coloured lamp will show the exact position of the office or shop, etc. he is looking for, and the quickest route will also be indicated by lighting up the road to be taken right the way from the Star Ferry to his destination. Bus and tram routes will be shown by special coloured lamps. Subscribers' names will be in Chinese as well as English if desired, and an attendant will be stationed at the switchboard to give assistance to strangers if required.

WHAT IT WILL COST: The service is free to the general public, and only a nominal charge will be made to subscribers of $36 per year per name panel. This fee will include a free insertion of the subscribers' name, address, particulars of his business, agencies carried, etc., in the "SILENT GUIDE DIRECTORY" which will be published in conjunction with the "Silent Guide" and which may be obtained from the attendant at the Star Ferry for ten cents. The Directory will contain a small replica of the large illuminated map for recording, with a pencil, any position or route located on the large map.

THE "SILENT GUIDE" invention is the property of the Tell-The-World Publishing Co., Rutton House, Duddell Street, who will be pleased to reserve name panel spaces on application. Patents have been applied for. The installation, which is expected to take six weeks from the time when the names of intending subscribers have been collected, is in the hands of Messrs. H. W. Buckingham & Co., Tai Ping Building.

NUDE DEAD CLIMBER STANDING IN SNOW

German Tourist Found On Alps

Geneva. The discovery of the nude body of a Germany tourist standing upright in the snow was made by Colonel Udet, the German "ace" after a fight along the base of the Alps near Grindelwald.

Accompanied by a Swiss guide, Colonel Udet made a fight at a height of only a few yards from the mountain face searching for traces of two Alpine climbers from Munich who had been reported missing.

The dead man was found on the Eiger Peak, facing the Little Scheidegg, with snow up to his knees.

No trace could be found of his clothes or of his companion, though it is thought that the latter probably lies buried under the snow.

From The Front

There is an old English saying that from the cobbler's point of view "there's nothing like leather." From the newspaper point of view there is nothing like war; whatever our opinion may be about the brutal waste and barbarity of war, there can be no question that we do buy special editions to see what has happened at some place we never heard of before, when we would never think of doing so if the contents bills merely announced the secret of a happy life. But in spite of the hot-foot cables (dispatched by runner) and all the rest of the comment that fills up columns we are still of the opinion that nothing at all decisive has yet happened in East Africa. The American News Agencies, with a strict eye to business, would have us believe that Adowa has been captured, and recaptured, and re-re-captured; that a vast army has been collected on the Southern front, and that a battle of tens of thousands men on both sides is just going to be fought. Adowa is a small collection of sundried mud huts that the Ethiopians made no attempt to hold; and that they consequently would make no attempt to retake. A battle after the style of the Western Front would be merely suicide for the defensive forces, and as they have a trained staff of Belgian Officers to advise on strategy there is no likelihood of anything of that sort being undertaken. An analogous position occurred in the first month of the Boer War, when the cables home reported attacks on kopjes "strongly held by five thousand men." The calculation was made on the basis of the distance from one end of the firing line to the other, on the supposition that the intervening distance was closely packed by men, as it would be by a European Army intent on fighting in the recognised disciplined formations of European troops. The fact was that the defenders were spaced out at twenty or thirty yards or even more, with their ponies tethered just over the rise. When the attack was delivered, and the hill captured, a small number of men would be seen in the distance riding for dear life, and "living to fight another day." On the boulder-strewn side of a hill, with bushes scattered between the boulders, you have every chance of stopping a bullet as you climb, but you have no chance at all of counting the men stationed there to snipe you.

Nor do we suppose that anyone has counted the followers of the Emperor's cousin who is said to have allowed his jealousy to overcome his patriotism. Lord Napier's advance on Magdala was facilitated by the fact that King Theodore was a blood-thirsty old tyrant who had made himself thoroughly obnoxious to all the Northern tribes. They did not actually assist, but neither did they resist; and they were always ready to sell provisions. One of the most striking points of that campaign was that, in spite of the small amount of resistance, everyone who took part in it remembered the stiff climbing and the stern weather as making it one of their most strenuous experiences.

It has become clear that the attack can only be successful if big successes are won within the next three weeks. The interest of news "from the front" is of purely local importance. The issue of the war will be decided at Geneva, where a still bigger campaign is being decided. That is for the right of civilisation to decide that nations shall not make unprovoked attacks on other nations. The action of France is the pivot of the contest. France has, ever since the Treaty of Versailles was signed, advocated the principle of collective resistance to invasion, so far as the application of that principle would make for her own security; and it must also be admitted that she has pleaded for the general application as a means to the same end, even against the reluctance of England to commit herself to such a general pledge. "We cannot send an army to the East of Europe," said Sir Austen Chamberlain when opposing the "Protocol" of 1924. The requirements of day are more elastic. The "sending an army" is to be left to those immediately interested; the other Powers are pledged only to assist as far as they can be reasonably expected to do. On this basis England has said to France and Austria and Poland "very well, if you do not join now in economic sanctions we shall not do our part when you are in need." The result is unanimity (superficial, no doubt); and the next week will show whether this procedure is

A KING AT CRICKET

The Prince of Wales has presented to Norfolk Cricket Club an old score book he found in a cupboard at St. James's Palace.

The book contains a record of the only known match in which King Edward VII. then Prince of Wales, participated.

The match was played between I Zingari and the Gentlemen of Norfolk at Sandringham Park on July 17 and 18, 1866. King Edward went in first for I Zingari, but was bowled second ball for 0 by Charles Wright, of Dereham.

King Edward batted only once, I Zingari beating Norfolk by an innings.

THE SEA-SERPENT SEASON

Holiday time always seems to produce startling phenomena in the great open spaces. It has apparently been ever thus.

An examination of Mr. Arthur Bryant's "Charles II." discloses that of exactly the same time of year as this—in 1663—he writes:

The silly season has begun. At Harwich a strange, dreadful fish appeared off the hoy, with long grey whiskers, looking "exceeding gasfully."

This forerunner of the Loch Ness Monster was probably a strayed and elderly seal.

The clerk thought a moment, and then his face lighted up. "Oh, yes," he said, "you mean itchyings."

Getting Himself Told
He told her of his great love. "When a belle is told," she whispered wistfully, "a ring generally follows."

Three fire engines and two ambulances dashed to the Bakers' Arms, Leyton, during one night last month, in response to a call from a fire alarm.

There was no fire, but by the alarm was a man who was apparently suffering from loss of memory.

He was taken to Whipps Cross Hospital, where he was detained for treatment.

His name was found to be William Weston, a consulting engineer, of Sidcup, Kent.

SHAKESPEARE ON THE FILMSA MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM EXPERIMENT

GREATEST REVELATION

(By Professor G. B. Harrison)

INTENSE interest is being aroused by the forthcoming production in London, Paris, and New York of Max Reinhardt's film version of "A Midsummer Night's Dream." The interest is not only in this remarkable film (of which I have had an advance view) but in the vast subject of the general possibilities of producing Shakespeare on the screen at all.

There is a world of difference between a stage play and a film. On the stage, the actor, who provides the actors with their words, is the most important partner in the production, for the greater part of the effect of a play comes from things heard; the ears are so much more important than the eyes that many plays, especially when the dialogue is good, can be reproduced for the ears alone in the form of radio plays.

On the screen, the eyes are far more important.

Actually, although most filmgoers probably do not realise it, the proportion of dialogue to action is very small, and although the music is now part of the film itself and not supplied separately by an orchestra, in the best films the spoken word is sparingly used; so that where a film is adapted from a stage play comparatively little of the original dialogue is kept, for most of the effect is conveyed by means of action and music.

A Threefold Interest

It follows that anyone who undertakes to produce a film version of a Shakespearean play is faced with all kinds of problems. If he were simply to film the stage version of the play as a whole, he would produce a result which is neither good drama nor good film.

Shakespeare himself wrote for a stage which was very limited in its equipment, and provided with little, if any, scenery. He had to gain most of his effect by means of his poetry and dialogue. A talking picture which was mainly dialogue would be deadly dull.

The interest, therefore, in this first serious attempt to film a Shakespeare will be threefold:

First, to see how Max Reinhardt can transmute the stage drama of Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" into film drama.

Secondly, how he creates the effects of mood and atmosphere which Shakespeare could evolve by poetry alone.

And, thirdly, what impression the film leaves as a work of art in itself.

Pictures And Music

There is no standard treatment or ritual performance of any of Shakespeare's plays; even on the stage the interest of each fresh treatment lies in the way in which old and familiar scenes are given novelty, charm, and new significance.

A film of Shakespeare will be an entirely new and different experience from any acted play. It will not be a substitute either for stage production or for reading, but, if well done, will add to the enjoyment of both, for it is an interpretation presented not in the form of a critical appreciation in words but in pictures and music.

In some respects, indeed, the film has great advantage over the theatre, for it is not circumscribed by the size of the stage. There is no end or limit to scenes of pageantry and magnificence, such as the wedding of Theseus, or the woodland settings in all variety which are needed for the misadventures of the lovers or the revels of Fairyland.

I have been privileged to see a private showing of Max Reinhardt's interpretation of "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

It is a surprising experience and entirely different from all expectation. The film is so full of unexpected beauties and rich comedy that first impressions are bewildering.

These Things Abide

Some stand out very clearly: the great song of welcome to Theseus; Bottom's panic at finding himself transformed into an ass; his awakening from the dream and his joy at seeing his own face in the woodland pool; Titania and the Indian boy; the dancing of Nini Theilade; the grotesque dwarfs of Fairyland; the moods and charm of Hermia; the angry lovers losing themselves and each other in the mist; and, underneath all, the sound of Mendelssohn's music.

It would be wrong for me to anticipate criticism or to review this film in detail until it is made available to the public, but my own impression is that it should be seen at least three times.

The first sight is so full of surprises and unexpected twists that half the subtleties are missed. A second visit will bring out new and telling significances which have been overlooked, especially in the opening minutes. Only at a third sitting will one be able to gain a complete impression of the whole.

A Vast New Public

It will be a revelation of what are the essential differences between the drama of the films and the drama of the stage as interpretations of Shakespeare's plays.

There is another and far more important consideration. Films are seen by thousands who never read a line of Shakespeare. For the first time they will now see one of his plays in a form and presentation which they can understand and appreciate; and it will add to the enjoyment and novelty of the experience that the principal parts are taken by such old favourites as James Cagney, Joe E. Brown, and Hugh Herbert.

This class of filmgoers and their children will find the film the greatest revelation.

To those of us who believe that the enjoyment of Shakespeare should be spread wide, Reinhardt's production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" is as important an event in the educational as in the film world, and I shall be surprised if teachers do not endorse this opinion.

REFUSED TO HAVE
HAIR CUT29 Soldiers Facing
Court-Martial

Vienna.
Because they refused to have their hair cut three N.C.O.s and 26 privates of a cavalry regiment in Olomice (Bohemia) have been sentenced by court-martial to imprisonment on charges of "rebellion."

Regimental orders laid down that all hair must be cut down to one-tenth of an inch. The 29 men refused, pointing out that they would be laughed at in town when walking in civilian clothes.

In spite of disciplinary punishment, they could not yield.

So the colonel of the regiment had them up before a court-martial. Now the men have all been found guilty of "rebellion." The privates have been sentenced to between two and three months' imprisonment. The N.C.O.s have received sentences ranging from three to four months' imprisonment, and have been reduced to the ranks.

"ENTIRE ABSENCE OF THE ENEMY"

WARNING TO FOREIGNERS
Addis Ababa: All British subjects and all foreigners under British protection, have been instructed to leave the Abyssinian capital, the women and children to leave immediately, and the men to be in readiness to depart at a moment's notice.

This step is said to have been taken at the instigation of the Abyssinian Government, which intimated that if foreigners did not leave voluntarily, measures of compulsion would have to be employed.

DESERTERS IN QUANTINITY
Adowa: Measures to accommodate the ever increasing number of deserters from the Abyssinian forces, and prisoners taken in battle, have been almost completed, states an announcement from Italian headquarters here, and all natives will be interned in concentration camps near Adi Kaie, where they will be kept for a definite period in quarantine. After this time has elapsed they will be organised into work gangs for road-building.

On the other hand, the fighters under Ras Haile Selassie Gorga, who surrendered to the Italians voluntarily, will be sent to the front. Fifteen abbots from the Coptic monasteries near Adowa, who are said to have declared themselves loyal to the Italians, were received by General de Bono, who afterwards also gave an audience to the three Coptic abbots from Aksum and the chief Mohammedan colony in the holy city.

From the same Italian source it is asserted that yesterday morning six feudal chiefs from the Tigre Province, together with their followers, went over to the Italians, bringing with them their weapons. These six chiefs each held the rank of major in the Abyssinian army.—Trans-Ocean Service.

"Big Push" Expected On Southern Front

HARRAR PREPARES FOR AIR RAIDS

Addis Ababa, earlier: Now that the operations in the north have come to a comparative standstill, while the Italians are consolidating the positions they have won and are organising administration in the conquered territory, an attack on a large scale is daily expected to be launched by the southern Italian army in Ogaden Province.

The activity of the Italian aeroplanes in this region has been increasing in the last few days, 12 machines having carried out a renewed bombardment of Gerlogubi, where 40 Abyssinian soldiers were killed by direct hits on their dug-out.

Large detachments of Abyssinian troops are being despatched from Harrar to the southern front in preparation for the Italian offensive, while in Harrar itself precautions are being taken against the air-raids that are hourly awaited.

ELABORATE PRECAUTIONS
Bomb-proof shelters are being constructed and the houses and supply depots camouflaged to render their detection more difficult from the air. Machine-guns are being set up on the surrounding heights where it is hoped that they will be able to bring down any low flying machines.

A regular spy fever is prevailing in Ogaden after the discovery of several frontier chiefs in the possession of large sums of Italian money. These men were immediately court-martialled and shot. The Italians, it is alleged, are attempting to smuggle arms and ammunition to those tribes that are still wavering in allegiance to the Emperor.

The Abyssinians, on the other hand, claim to have won over several tribes from Italian Somaliland to their side.

EGYPT PREPARES
Cairo: Engineers and regiments of the Egyptian Army, as well as the Ninth Infantry Battalion, which were hitherto stationed at Meadi, have been transferred to Mersa Metru on the Libyan frontier.

Nersa Metru is a small coastal town in the harbour of which a British destroyer is now anchored.—Trans-Ocean Service.

ARMS EMBARGO LIFTED
London: Following the decision of the Co-ordination Committee at Geneva, the embargo on the export of arms from Great Britain to Abyssinia has now been raised and the Board of Trade has stated that it is prepared to receive applications for licences from exporters of arms who have orders to execute for the Abyssinian Government.

ASSURANCES DENIED
London: Most of the Governments whose diplomatic or consular representatives at Addis Ababa joined in sending identical telegrams to their respective Governments on October 6 asking them to obtain assurances from the Italian Government that neither Addis Ababa nor Dire Dawa would be attacked from the air have now made representations in Rome in that sense. Signor Suvich, the Italian Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, has, it is understood, taken note of the representations.—British Wireless Service.

LOCAL NEWS BREVITIES

Two deaths from diphtheria, three from typhoid, and 56 from tuberculosis, were reported during the week ended on Saturday last.

Among the passengers who arrived back here from Shanghai yesterday by the s.s. President Taft was Miss Alison Mackenzie, the K.C.C. lawn tennis player.

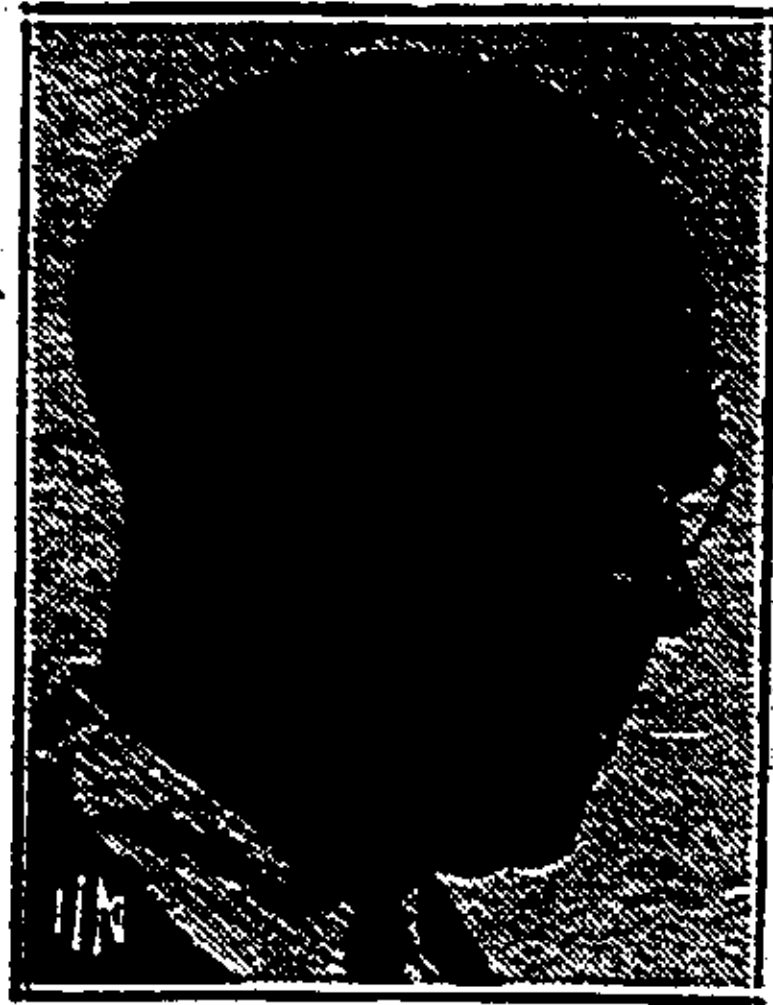

The engine of Bus No. 576, driven by Ko Lam, suddenly caught fire, when near the Royal Naval Yard yesterday afternoon. The fire was put out by the chemical extinguishers on the bus and by the aid of some Dockyard Police. No one was injured.

Thomas Smith Thorne, an American seaman, did not put in an appearance at the Central Police Court this morning, when charged with being drunk and disorderly in Connaught Road yesterday. His Worship, Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen ordered his bail of $10 to be estreated.

Chan Hing, a coolie at the Dogs' Home, was yesterday bitten on the right hand. He was cleaning the animal when it was attacked by three other dogs. The coolie was treated at the Kowloon Hospital and the dog, which had been innoculated, was ordered to be detained at the Home.

Tse Kin-man, aged 24, a carpenter, was today sentenced to six weeks' hard labour by Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy for the theft of $30 and a fountain pen from Miss Robertson of No. 106, The Peak, on different dates between October 9 and 11. The defendant, who had already spent $22.50 of the money when arrested, was ordered to make good this sum or serve another two weeks' imprisonment.

Information has been received from England that Joy Booker, who went home on leave from this Colony in February of last year, has passed her Cambridge School certificate examination with distinctions in English and History, credits in Mathematics, Geography, and Biology, and a pass in French. Joy received most of her education in the Central British School and the high standard in this school has been favourably commented upon.

The charge of criminal libel made against Nelson Rouseff, above, Panama Canal Zone newspaper publisher, by Major-General Harold R. Fiske and Col. James V. Heidt has become a national issue. The charges grew out of published criticisms of conditions in American army posts in the zone.

ALARMING SWATOW RUMOURS

Unfounded Rumours Of Forced Landing

DISPUTE NEARLY SETTLED

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, To-day: Alarming reports were current over the week-end that Japanese bluejackets from the seven warships at Swatow made a forced landing to bring pressure to bear on the municipal authorities for the release of rice to Japanese merchants, but such reports have turned out to be entirely unfounded.

Other fantastic stories were also circulated on Sunday, apparently by speculators in Hong Kong banknotes, and none could be confirmed.

It is now learned that the Swatow incident is likely to be settled soon. One Swatow dispatch has it that Rear-Admiral S. Shimomura, who is in command of the squadron in Swatow harbour, has left for Shanghai. The dispute is in the hands of the local Chinese authorities and Mr. Chichiro Harada, the Japanese Consul.

The Consul is demanding that the rice imported by Japanese merchants should be exempted from the agricultural tax on the strength of treaty stipulations. The object is that these merchants should be able to sell rice at a lower price than that of Chinese importers.

U. S. S. ASHVILLE LEAVES FOR SWATOW

The U.S.S. Ashville, a river gunboat, arrived in the Colony to-day and left this afternoon for Swatow on a scheduled visit.

ALL AUSTRALIA TO BE MAPPED

Gigantic Task

ESTIMATED TO REQUIRE THIRTY YEARS

Australia is shortly to take preliminary steps for the task of accurately surveying and mapping itself. Its area is nearly three million square miles, about 25 times as large as the British Isles. A detailed geodetic and topographical survey will cost, it is estimated, about $4,000,000, and take more than 30 years of continuous work to complete.

Useful work has already been done by the North Australia aerial survey and privately by such organisations as the Mackay expedition which has just returned to Sydney after having covered 180,000 square miles of the interior and mapped a large number of watercourses not previously recorded or even known.

Britain's Health Report

London, to-day: The report for 1934 of the Chief Medical Officer to the Ministry of Health records a death rate of 11.8 per thousand population, as against 12.3 in 1933. The birth rate rose slightly from 14.4 per thousand in 1933 to 14.8 and the infant mortality rate was the lowest ever recorded—at 59 deaths of children under one year per thousand births. To-day's Short Story

Street Of The Cobblers

By Cecilia Willoughby

THE Street of the Cobblers was old and changeless. Abu Sadir rocked gently to and fro. Seated on his frayed mat, he held a shabby shoe to his breast, and waxed a thread held in his teeth.

For more than a score of years he had sat in the shadow of the old wall, cobbling shoes. There were other cobblers in the street, but they came and went, while Abu Sadir stayed. The row of worn shoes before him was always longer than that of any of the others. He was older and more skilled than they.

From morning till late afternoon he sat by the wall. Then he gathered up his stock-in-trade and, holding his burnous about his ancient frame, went slowly to the hovel he called home. He was getting feeble, and the world was old to him now....he had seen and learnt so much, there was little that was new to him.

Abu was not peaceful in his mind to-day. Things were not going as he had hoped they would. A week before two white people had come down the Street of the Cobblers: a man and a woman with dark eyes and hair, and the smallest hands—and feet—Abu Sadir had ever seen—and he had seen many.

She had paused beside each cobbler's place, smiling at the halting English or stream of Arabic addressed to her. But the man had taken her arm and led her on, past the voluble cobblers, until they reached Abu Sadir, seated in dignified silence and hoary age on his mat, stitching a merchant's shoe.

The young man, paused before Abu Sadir and said to the white girl with him: "This is the one, Joan. He does all our repairs, and he's not such a shark as the rest. Leave them with him."

The girl produced two incred-

CLARK GABLE MOBBED

Attacked By Adoring Women

FACE COVERED WITH LIPSTICK

Santiago, Chile, Oct. 7: The women of Santiago have long admired Clark Gable, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's personality star.

Clark's arrival here to-day proved too much for the women of Santiago to bear.

One hundred of them, ranging from vivacious señoritas to not-so-vivacious donnas, invaded his hotel rooms here, overpowering a handful of guards in so doing.

Clark finally escaped, but not unscathed. But eye-witnesses said he looked in more rumpled condition than he ever did as a "hard-boiled sea captain of 'China Seas'."

A score of different shades of lipstick left marks of a varied assortment of hues.

With the field clear "sabotage" started in earnest.

Souvenirs were collected in the form of pyjamas, carried away from the hotel, underwear, handkerchiefs and socks.

Gable arrived by air. He is en route to Buenos Aires, Argentina.

by small white shoes, and asked Abu Sadir to sole them.

From the depth of his white beard, Abu replied in colloquial English:

"I will do all the Sitt wishes."

The young man grinned.

"Make a good job of them, Abu. I've recommended you to the lady. We'll come for them on Friday."

"Salama aleikum wa, Baknab Allah," said the old man gratefully. "Peace be on you...."

The young man and the girl turned and strolled off down the narrow street, and Abu Sadir watched them until they were out of sight. Those two, he thought, as he resumed his labours, were made for one another.

He mended the little white shoes with care. They were lost in the palm of his gnarled brown hands, and so slim he wondered how small were her feet to go within such shoes.

She took to coming down the

TO-MORROW'S STORY

To-morrow's story will be "One Word From You", by A. P. Garland.

Cobblers' Street each morning, with the young man laughing at her side. They would pause beside Abu's mat and say, "Are they finished yet?"

With profuse apologies Abu would explain that they had said a week—a week from yesterday—and he had all these shoes to mend before the week was done....also, the lady's shoes were so small they would take more skill, more time to mend than many shoes.... but in a week they would be ready....

"A pack of lies," grinned the young man. "They're all lazy beggars, Joan. You'll have to wait a week for them."

The girl smiled at Abu Sadir, and that patriarch bowed and explained all over again in a mixture of Arabic and English the reasons why the shoes could not be done inside a week.

The girl laughed and nodded, and Abu Sadir thought the only thing one never wearied of in the world was a girl's face. Those two....they were in love. Long since Abu had loved....had been young as they were young....had loved as they loved now. Abu looked kindly on lovers.

The next day they came, strolling along together, hand in hand, paused by Abu's mat and talked a while with him, and then passed on with careless disregard for time.

They came every day for a week. Abu knew why they came. The shoes were a good excuse for them to come together....the Street of the Cobblers was quiet and few white people walked there, preferring to send their servants with their shoes for repairs. If these two were seen out together, they could say that they had come to get her shoes. Abu Sadir was witness to the truth of that....

sitting on his mat with a little white shoe in his hands, stitching on a minute sole with a care he had not bestowed on his work for years.

Abu knew all about the white girl. News in Morocco travels as fast as in any English village. Gossip flourishes the world over. The white girl was married and her husband was the big red-faced man who had kicked Abu Sadir because the sole had come off his shoe after Abu had repaired it. But even Abu did not repair boots to stand up to such treatment as that pair had had. No sole ever sewn would have remained intact through it. The white girl's husband was a big man in Morocco—he belonged to the army, and occupied a big white house on the verge of the city, with many servants. He had sought out the "damned devil of a cobbler" who had soled his boots and shoes, and told him what he thought of him. Abu had listened patiently, without betraying a sign, and that had incensed the man further to stir up the old scoundrel with his foot.

Abu remembered. Therefore when he saw the great man's wife with the young white man from the "engineering depot" he muttered into his beard and was well pleased. These two were in love with each other, and the husband of the white woman did not know. (Continued on Page 10.)

CHINA YEAR BOOK

1935 EDITION

The 25 Chapters of the 17th issue of the CHINA YEAR BOOK, edited by H. G. W. Woodhead, C.B.E., have as usual been revised or rewritten with the assistance of many experts, Chinese and foreign, and every effort has been made to bring information and statistics up to date.

The Chapter on the Kuomintang covers the political history of China in 1934. The Chapter on the Chinese Government contains the Text of the Provisional Constitution, the Organic Law, and the Draft of the Permanent Constitution.

The Chapter on International Issues gives the text of the Agreement and Exchange of Notes of the sale of the Chinese Eastern Railway, besides the latest documents relating to Sino-Japanese issues.

China's Communications—Railways, Roads, Post Office, Telegraphs, Wireless, Telephones and Aviation—are very fully dealt with.

Father D'Elia, in the Chapter on Religions, contributes an interesting Chronological Review of Catholic Missions in China.

Mr. E. Kann is again responsible for the Chapter on Currency and Banking, and the Loan Tables.

A new feature is a Chapter on China's Modern Industries.

Abu repaired the little white shoes. The price he asked was small, but when she came for them she left him three times as much. The young man with her was equally preoccupied. They strolled down the Street of the Cobblers and talked as they went. Some instinct that was more than mere curiosity moved Abu Sadir to leave his mat and follow them. He shuffled along behind them, his burnous wrapped closely around him, and age had not marred the keen perfection of his hearing. Before he turned aside into a thronged bazaar he had heard....heard those two planning to run away together, to escape the big white man who was her husband and go away somewhere where they could be happy, where nobody would know them. He was going to China; he wanted her to go with him. It was so easy—so easy if she would only come....

"You are not happy with him," the young man said over and over again, and Abu knew it was true by the way she drooped her head and sighed, and it worried him that these two who were so much beloved of each other should be kept apart by the brutal white man who had kicked him because the sole of his boot had been torn off.

Abu went back to his mat in the Street of the Cobblers, deep in thought. Fortune played into his hands that very afternoon.

The white girl came again, and with her her lover, and brought to Abu a pair of riding boots, brown and polished, to be repaired. It was only a small repair and Abu could have done it while she waited. But he did not say so, because he wanted her to come again.

"They are my husband's," she said to him. "So take great care. He is so particular about his things. I brought them myself, because I wanted to point that out to you. The boots are best he has, and they were specially made of leather which is very expensive, so you must take great care and do them well. He is going away for a week, to hunt with his friends, and he wishes to ride in these boots, so you must have them done for to-morrow—he goes to-morrow."

From the tremor in her voice Abu knew that the week her husband would be away hunting would mean much to her. It would be an escape with her lover....an opportunity that had played into her hands just at the right minute. The boots must be done. Abu bowed low.

"They shall be ready to-morrow," he said, and smiled under his beard.

The white girl called for the boots the next day. Abu ran his brown withered finger along the edges of the soles of the riding boots, perfectly repaired, and polished by Abu's leathern apron to dazzling brilliance, and said:

"Will your most worthy husband set forth on his journey in these most beautiful boots?"

"He will," she said. "They ride the first lap, and these happen to be the most comfortable pair he has. What do I owe you?"

Abu named the price. A trifling sum that hardly paid him for the labour. He fitted the wooden trees into the boots with "care. They were footless and kept the legs tant."

"The leather I have used to repair the little slit may shrink," he said, as he handed her the boots. "Therefore let the stretchers not be moved until the boots are put on."

The girl nodded and turned to go. Abu muttered into his beard as he watched her go.

"Mabsut....they will yet be happy."

Then he turned to his assortment of shabby shoes, and selected one and gave his mind to the serious business of repairing it.

The next day the news crept round Morocco that the great white man had died from the bite of a poisonous snake that had hidden itself—of all places—in his riding boot.

Abu Sadir smiled under his beard and muttered: "Mabsut....now they are happy."

TWO MEN—AND A BASS—IN A BOAT

Here is the very latest fish story.

Two members of the Deal Rowing Club were out for practice in a pair-oared racing craft.

One of the rowers felt something hit the back of his neck. He turned to ask his companion what he was doing.

He found that a two-foot bass had jumped aboard.

The fish got wedged under a sliding seat and the craft was nearly overturned before it was secured.

FRENCH WARSHIPS LAUNCHED

Ship In Two Sections

Paris. The 7,600-ton cruiser Gloire was launched on September 23 at Bordeaux. This vessel, which was built under the 1932 section of the French naval programme, was placed on the stocks in November, 1933.

A few days after the launching of the Gloire the 26,500-ton battle cruiser Dunkerque was floated at Brest. She was built in two sections, because the dock was not large enough for a vessel of her size. The main section of the 652ft. hull has been closed at one end by a temporary wooden bow.

TWENTY ALTARS IN A LINER

Laurentic's First Trip Since Mishap

64 INVALIDS ON BOARD

Dublin, September 8.

The Cunard-White Star liner Laurentic left Dublin last night for Le Verdon with 1,300 pilgrims for Lourdes. This is her first voyage since her collision with the Napier Star in the Irish Sea on August 18.

All yesterday pilgrims were arriving here from different parts of Ireland. There were 64 invalids, including 20 stretcher cases.

The pilgrimage, which is being led by the Bishop of Down and Connor, Dr. Mageean, is organised by the Irish Franciscans. Twenty altars have been set up in the liner, and a special Oratory has been fitted. This is to be a permanent structure. Loud-speakers have been installed on the decks, so that all the pilgrims can take part each day in the services.

Twelve Franciscan friars and 50 secular priests are travelling with the pilgrims. There are hospitals on board, where medical men, nuns and nurses will attend to the invalids.

Before the liner left Dublin the pilgrims crowded the decks, singing hymns, in which the people on shore joined. The Lord Mayor of Dublin was among those present.

The Laurentic is due to arrive at Le Verdon to-morrow. She will return to Dublin at once, and leave on Wednesday night with another large party of pilgrims for Lourdes.

ALLISON DISPLACES "BUNNY" AUSTIN

met in a turf championship. He was the logical second "seed" and proved it at Eastbourne, where he defeated both Perry and Austin on the eve of the Davis Cup challenge round.

Greatest of German Players

These statements of fact do not dim the German champion's record. By his own brilliant efforts he very nearly carried his count y into the last round of the Davis Cup. He is the greatest player Germany has ever produced. His victims included Crawford and Austin, although he has not yet defeated either on a grass surface. When his volleying is as secure as his driving Von Cramm, with his youth, stamina and courage, may be unassailable, but his greatest day is yet to come.

Allison and Austin exchange places in spite of the Englishman's victory in the Davis Cup. There was an element of fortune about that result which left nothing to choose between them, and Allison's recent triumph in the American championship in which he played great tennis, unhorsing Perry in the semi-final, entitles him to promotion. He did not beat a physically fit Perry as Crawford did, but on his Forest Hills from he was a match for any world player.

Donald Budge has earned the sixth place. Not yet fully matured, this young Californian reached the semi-final at Wimbledon on his first visit, beating Austin on the way. His path to the final was checked by Von Cramm, but he had his revenge over the German in the Davis Cup, just as Austin, when he opposed Budge, reversed the former verdict in the same competition. The American found a slow court inimical to his speed at Forest Hills and did not do his powers justice. That he will become a second Vines is probable.

There are more than four rivals for the last four places. Frank Shields played less but played better; he gave Perry a real challenge at Forest Hills and was divided from a two-sets-to-one lead by only one stroke.

Vivian McGrath comes into the First Ten for the first time. He beat Allison at Wimbledon and Perry in Australia. He is another potential champion. Christian Boususs showed no decline on his home courts, and Sydney Wood is given the tenth place not only because he was a finalist in the American championship, but because he waged a close fight with Crawford at Wimbledon.

Women's First Ten

1. Mrs. Moody (U.S.A.)
2. Miss H. Jacobs (U.S.A.)
3. Miss E. Stammers (England)
4. Mrs. Sperling (Germany)
5. Mrs. Fabian (U.S.A.)
6. Miss D. E. Round (England)
7. Mrs. Arnold (U.S.A.)
8. Miss Mathieu (France)
9. Miss J. Harcourt (Australia)
10. Miss M. C. Scriver (England)

Mrs. Moody recovers the first place by virtue of her triumph at Wimbledon, where all but two of the first ten were competing. One may have been tempted to bracket her with Miss Jacobs, for only a stroke divided them in their famous final, and both were beaten by Miss Stammers during the year. But any player who can win the title at Wimbledon from 5-2 down in the third set against such a ruthless opponent as Miss Jacobs has earned pride of place.

Miss Jacobs kept the American championship for the fourth successive year, thereby establishing a record. She was defeated by Mrs. Sperling, Mrs. Moody and Miss Stammers; she got her revenge over the first at Wimbledon and beat the conqueror of Miss Stammers at Forest Hills.

Most Improved Player
Miss Stammers "makes" the first ten as the most improved player of the year. Her conquerors include Mrs. Moody, Miss Jacobs, Miss Round and Miss Scriver. Half a dozen players may have defeated her this year. At her best she can win the highest honour—she has a genius for surprise.

Completely out of form at Wimbledon, Mrs. Sperling nevertheless had a remarkable year, for the German and French champion lost fewer sets than any other player. Mrs. Fabian (formerly Miss Sarah Paley) increased her reputation, defeating almost the best Miss Stammers.

Except at two early tournaments, Miss Round's championship form was not reproduced, but her skill is inherent, and next year she may strike again. Mrs. Arnold won the Wightman Cup for America; she is yet another Californian who will be seen at Wimbledon in 1936. By a surprising victory over the holder, Miss Hartigan reached the semi-final at Wimbledon for the second time. Like Miss Round, Mme. Mathieu and Miss Scriver lost ground; both have the spirit to regain it.

NIGHT BASEBALL TO BE EXTENDED COMING SEASON

Beginning Of End

Navin recently expressed the opinion that night baseball "would be the beginning of the end for the major leagues" but this view-point is not generally shared.

Here's the current lineup based on a poll of club officials by the Associated Press.

Cubs operating or definitely planning night baseball: Cincinnati Reds, Boston Braves and Washington Senators.

Cubs "open minded" but inclined "avocably": St. Louis Cardinals, Chicago White Sox, Pittsburgh Pirates and St. Louis Browns.

Cubs definitely opposed: Detroit Tigers, Cleveland Indians, Boston Red Sox, New York Giants, New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers.

Non-committal: Philadelphia Athletics.

Provision Made For Collectors

INSTRUCTIONS HOW TO SECURE FIRST-DAY COVERS

Juan Ruiz, director of posts, has announced the sale of a series of commemorative stamps on the occasion of the inauguration of the Philippine commonwealth on November 15. The sale will be made simultaneously in Manila and at the office of the Philippine Trade Commissioner, Washington, D. C., on that date.

The stamps which will bear a design depicting the "Temple of Human Progress" consist of 2-centavo, 6-centavo, 16-centavo, 36-centavo and 50-centavo denominations.

The sale in Manila will be made between 2.00 and 9.00 p.m. on November 15. Mr. Ruiz declared that a special cachet or a rubber stamp will be affixed to each properly addressed envelope intended for stamp collection purposes. Names and addresses should be typewritten or written in ink, and only envelopes addressed accordingly and bearing any of the commemorative stamps will be accepted and postmarked in the office of the superintendent of posts. No envelope with an address written in pencil will be accepted for the purpose.

Those who desire to have first day covers should send their envelopes properly addressed to the superintendent of the money order division, Bureau of posts so that they will be received before the date. They should be accompanied by letters stating the denomination of stamps desired to be affixed to such envelopes and a money order payable to the postmaster, Manila, covering the cost of the stamps, including the amount to cover postage and registry fee for the return of the envelopes.

ALEXANDRIA'S BIG HARBOUR PLAN

£1,000,000 To Be Spent

The Egyptian Government has decided to commission Sir Cyril Kirkpatrick, former president of the Institute of Civil Engineers, to come to Cairo in November to advise on essential improvements to Alexandria Harbour. The question has been under consideration for more than 15 years, but political considerations have always prevented any step being taken.

Now, however, there is urgent need of more quay space, the lack of which is impeding commercial development. The Government has decided to put into execution any scheme that Sir Cyril Kirkpatrick may advise. The cost is estimated at £1,000,000.

Two cases of diphtheria and five of typhoid fever were notified as having occurred in the Colony during the 24 hours ended on Sunday.

Reservations are now being received by the superintendent of the money order division of the bureau; no stamps will be reserved unless remittances equal to the value thereof is made.

U. S. SENATORS EXPECTED TO VISIT N. CHINA

Passing Through On Way To Manila

ATTENDING INAUGURATION OF PHILIPPINE REPUBLIC

Nanking, To-day.—A group of high officials of the American Government, including Mr. John Garner, Vice-President, Mr. George Dern, Secretary for War, and several Senators, are expected to visit Shanghai in the latter part of this month while on their way to Manila to participate in the inaugural ceremony of the Philippine Republic.

It is learned that Mr. John Garner and several Senators are expected to arrive in Shanghai from Washington on October 29. They will stay at the Port City for one day, following which they will proceed to the Philippine Islands.

Mr. George Dern is expected to reach Shanghai on October 22 on board a gunboat. The following day he will leave for Nanking in company with Mr. Nelson Johnson, the American Ambassador to China. On October 23, at 3 o'clock, he will call on Mr. Wang Ching-wei, President of the Executive Yuan. He will spend the whole of October 24 in sight-seeing, and will return to Shanghai on October 25 to resume his journey to Manila.

The American Ambassador will leave Peiping for Nanking on October 16. After arriving at the capital, he will make a brief stay to interview the high Chinese officials, following which, it is learned, he will proceed to the Port City on October 18, in order to accompany Mr. Dern to the capital—Central News Agency.

"All banking credits, intended directly or indirectly for public bodies or individuals, actual or hypothetical, established on Italian territory, as well as subsequent execution, through advances, overdrafts or any other means, of all contracts for loans, intended directly or indirectly to their advantage."

"All issues of shares or calling up of capital to the benefit of public bodies or individuals, actual or hypothetical, established on Italian territory as well as subscriptions to such shares or the calling of capital effected in Italy or elsewhere."

"Governments will forbid these operations whether they are effected directly or through an intermediary of whatever nationality."

"Credits, however, for humanitarian or religious purposes are not included among the operation to be forbidden."

"Each Government is invited to make known with as little delay as possible to the League of Nations the steps they are prepared to take in the conformity with the above mentioned dispositions."

Fuller Statements To Be Issued At Geneva

Geneva.—The Committee of Eighteen issued an official communique last night stating that in the future the Committee will issue fuller statements about its work so that, on the one hand, it will prevent the spread of false reports and rumours concerning their labours and, on the other hand, facilitate the work of journalists.

This decision was as a result of complaints made to the effect that, despite the fact that all the Committee members were sworn to secrecy, several journalists were able on Sunday to telephone the substance of several of the recom-

NAVAL CONSTRUCTION IN AMERICA

Fleet Auxiliaries To Be Augmented

Washington, To-day.—During the fiscal year 1937 the United States intends to construct one battleship, 12 destroyers, and six submarines, states the Navy Department. The enlisted strength will be increased to 100,000 men. In the fiscal year 1936 it is planned to augment the fleet auxiliaries, such as transports, tenders, tugs and ammunition ships.—Reuter.

FLOOD RAVAGE IN HUPEH

6,000,000 Needed To Repair Dykes

Hankow, To-day.—Mr. Hsi Teh-chung, Director of Kiangnan Engineering Bureau, will proceed to Chungking on the Han River to inspect the collapsed dykes there on or about October 20.

For the repair of the collapsed dykes in the whole of the Province of Hupeh, according to Mr. Hsi, the sum needed is $6,000,000. As the amount provided in the Provincial budget for repairs during the current year is only $2,000,000, there is therefore a deficit of about $4,000,000.

Mr. Hsi, it is reported, will shortly leave for Nanking to petition the Central Government to allot subsidies for the completion of the work—Central News Agency.

SPY WHO ESCAPED EXECUTION

Scheepers Comes To Life Again

Capetown.—A Boer War episode has been recalled by the claim of a man in Bloemfontein to be Commandant Gideon Scheepers, a Boer spy, who was said to have been executed by the British at Graaf Reinet.

The man claims that when he was led out at dawn to be executed a friendly sergeant in charge of the firing party distributed blank cartridges, and that he was allowed to escape after simulating death.

It is known that Scheepers' "grave" was opened by a commission of inquiry after the war, and that it was found to be empty.

GENERALISSIMO IN NANKING

Nanking, To-day.—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek arrived here from Taiyuan at 2.45 p.m. yesterday in his Ford plane. He was greeted at the aerodrome by a big gathering of Government officials.—Central News Agency.

Recommendations of the Sanctions Committee which they had drawn up.

This indiscretion is attributed to the intention of certain Committee members to try sabotage of the sanctions plans by provoking public discussion before the decisions were announced, and working up an opposition outside the Geneva conclaves—Trans-Ocean Service.

BRITAIN AND EMBARGO

Geneva.—Mr. Anthony Eden informed the General Secretary of the League of Nations on behalf of the British Government that, in accordance with the proposal of sanctions at the conference on October 11, which had decided to permit the export of weapons and ammunition to Abyssinia, the arms embargo on Italy will remain in force in its present form, pending the alteration or extension of the list of arms the proposal mentioned.

RELIGIOUS DECISION.—A Belgian, semi-official telegraphic agency announces that in accordance with the recommendation of the League to individual member States, the Belgian Government will in the future grant a permit for the export of arms to Abyssinia.

NEW CAMPAIGN AGAINST PIRATES IN BIAS BAY

2 More River Gunboats
Dispatched

NAVAL DEFENCE MAPPED OUT

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, To-day.

To augment the naval force in Bias Bay, the river gunboats Chung Yuan and Chup Shun are now on their way to that district. The other two gunboats Hai Fu and Kwong Kum are already on patrol duty in that strip of water.

The Chung Yuan and Chup Shun used to stand guard at Tungshan and the Western Outskirts bathing beaches to protect the swimmers against river bandits. Now that the swimming season is over, these gunboats are being relieved of further duty here.

The Anti-Piracy Office at Bias Bay has now ordered all villagers to report the whereabouts of the pirates, otherwise they will be punished as pirates. This sort of mutual guarantee is necessary, as it is sometimes difficult to distinguish pirates from innocent fishermen.

Apart from being the hide-out of pirates, Bias Bay is of strategic importance. Captain Yang Chao-lun, second-in-command of the Piracy Suppression Office, has mapped out the naval defence of that location, which is about 25 miles north-east of Hong Kong.

NANKING TO RECOGNISE MANCHUKUO?

The veteran Kuomintang leader deplores the abolition of Kuomintang organs in North China and expresses the fear that more party offices will be abolished. He says that the South-west is the only place in China where the Kuomintang still has a firm foothold and where patriotic sentiment is prevalent.

"If China and Japan really were to co-operate," Mr. Hsiao added, "the South-west alone would be in a position to fulfil the task on a basis of equality and reciprocity."

CHINESE SCOUTS VISIT U.S.A.

Return To Nanking

Nanking, To-day.—A group of 15 representatives of Chinese Boy Scouts, who had been despatched to the United States to participate in the celebration of the founding of the American Boy Scouts, arrived here from America this morning. Shortly after arrival they called on Dr. Wang Shih-chieh, Minister of Education, to report on the results of their trip—Central News Agency.

HELPING CHINA'S EXPORTS

Nanking, To-day.—In order to encourage China's foreign trade, the Ministry of Industries has recently urged the overseas Chinese Chambers of Commerce to hold native goods exhibitions—Central News Agency.

MINISTER TO TURKEY

Nanking, To-day.—General Ho Yao-tu, the first Chinese Minister to Turkey, may return here from Ankara, by way of Russia, to participate in the 5th Kuomintang Congress, according to those in touch with diplomatic circles—Central News Agency.
